G.O.P. Favors Kohler Tax Plan; Democrats Pledge Slash in Costs

Conservatives Win Full Control at Platform Conclave

ALSO URGE ECONOMY
Strict Regulation of Utilities Is Favored
By Party

Madison—(P)—Conservative Republicans seized control of all the party machinery at yesterday's state platform convention. George L. Gilkey, of Merrill, as chairman of the state central committee and adopted the Kohler platform as their point against Democrats in the general election.

Progressive leadership, outnumbered by a majority of 13 votes was removed entirely from any control of Republican party affairs for the next two years.

Walter J. Kohler will make his campaign speech against Mayor G.
Schmedeman of Madison, on a platform embodying many of his declarations in the primary contest.

It was a platform which Progressive floor leaders in the convention were inclined to praise in part but they refused to accept it in preference to their own priority report. The minority platform was the same that was used by Gov. Philip F. LaFollette in his unsuccessful campaign for renomaination. It was rejected by a vote of 87 to 57 and the Kohler platform then was adopted without a roll call.

For Kohler Proposal
Mr. Kohler's views on taxation were embodied in the declaration of principles, particularly the repeal of the state property tax for budget purposes and exemptions for small property taxpayers similar to the exemptions now granted under the income tax law.

The plank on public utilities and economy in government provide for strict regulation by the State Service commission and pledge that the commission must not be hampered by lack of funds of undesirable legislation.

The utility plank also advocates support of the municipal power amendment at the November election. This is the amendment which would permit extensions of publicly owned utilities to be financed outside of constitutional limitations.

Alvin C. Reis, Progressive floor leader and special counsel for the Public Service commission, commended the conservatives for taking this stand, but found fault with the property tax proposals and the unemployment relief plank, the last of which, he said, was not specific enough.

For relief, the conservatives urged the utmost economy in all units of government to provide funds and pledged the levying of what ever income taxes are necessary to meet the relief burden and through betterment of the conditions of industry and agriculture were urged.

O. K. Hoover Regime
The conservatives endorsed the administration of President Hoover and declared in favor of resubmission of the eighteenth amendment.

It also called for a state crime detecting agency, deplored monopolistic control of banking, demanded rigid regulation of investment securities, urged a well developed highway system, and a sound conservative program and advocated strengthening of the election laws.

For agriculture the Republicans favored greater control of farm marketing agencies and wider use of Wisconsin products. For industry they pledged a policy of encouragement. For labor they declared in favor of adjusting the working time so all will have jobs and adopting "a flexible working day or week."

Eight district members of the new Republican state central committee are: Dan J. Coffey, Marinette-co vice chairman; Fred Borchardt, Manitowish-co; Seymour Gmeiner, Outagamie-co; Mrs. Harold Malchow, Brown-co; Mrs. V. A.
Lundgren, Marinette-co.

Three Warrants Out in Alleged Mail Fraud Case

Halsey, Stuart and Co. Officers to Post Bonds
Today, Lawyer Says

Chicago—(P)—Warrants for the removal of Harold L. Stuart and two other officers of Halsey, Stuart and Company, investment brokers, for trial at Milwaukee on an indictment charging use of the mails to defraud were obtained today by U. S. District Attorney Dwight H.
Green.

Issuance of the warrants disclosed for the first time the names of those indicted.

E. Hall Leith and Daniel Upp of Chicago, were sought on the warrants here, and the district attorney made known that Charles B. Stuart, vice president, Paul M. Stricker and Leonard L. Stanley were the New York officers indicted.

Attorney Harold Become notified the district attorney that the three Chicago defendants could not post $5,000 in bonds each this afternoon for appearance for trial at Milwaukee and said they would not fight removal to Wisconsin.

The indictments, each containing eight counts, charged the company with falsely representing the value and earnings of buildings in literature sent through the mails to prospective purchasers of $135,000-600 in bonds of the Wardman Realty and Construction company and the Wardman Real Estate Properties in Washington. The Wardman interests are owners of 13 office, hotel and apartment buildings in the national capital.

Conviction would carry sentences of five years imprisonment and fines of $1,000 on each of the eight counts of the indictments.

Removal warrants were expected to be issued today in New York for officials of the firm there.

Court Told About Death Threat Note

Council for Higginbotham Says Client's Life
Was Menaced

Jacksonville, Fla.—(P)—Fuller
Warren, counsel for Solomon Higginbotham who, with George W.
Courson, is on trial charged with the torture murder of Arthur Maillefer, New Jersey convict, today asked the court that each spectator be subjected to close inspection because of a death threat received by one of the defendants.

The request came soon after the seating of a jury of 12 men following two and a half days' examination of veniremen.

Judge George C. Gibbs, presiding, told Warren today "we will do all we can toward that end and if you hear of any specific information, please let me know and I will take immediate steps in the premises."

Warren already had asked that special guards be appointed in view of the letter, but the court held this was unnecessary.

Chapple Margin Over 10,000, Board Reports

Madison—(P)—John B. Chapple, Ashland, Republican nominee for United States senator, received 348,891 votes in the September primary to defeat his opponent, United States Senator John J. Blaine, who received 338,042 votes, the state canvassing board announced yesterday.

SHIFT ON UTILITIES
Adopt Plan Advocated By Party Presidential Candidate

Madison—(P)—Pledges to reduce the present budget of state expenditures by at least 25 per cent and continue the work of the Public Service commission, and the advocacy of the repeal of the 18th amendment are contained in the platform adopted by Wisconsin Democrats in convention here yesterday.

The convention's platform committee went to work in the afternoon and did not complete its task until near midnight. The platform was adopted unanimously and without debate when submitted to the convention.

Before the platform came to the floor, the convention witnessed an attempt to unseat Otto LaBudde, Milwaukee, as chairman of the state central committee. Mayor A.
G. Schmedeman, Madison, the party's candidate, for governor, nominated LaBudde and his election was about to be made unanimous when Neil McEachin of Rhinelander submitted the name of William B. Rubin, Milwaukee, unsuccessful candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

A secret ballot was taken but before the votes could be counted Rubin withdrew. The latter explained that some delegates had expressed a desire for a new chairman and that although he was in no sense a candidate he would accept the post if a chance was made and he was elected. Chairman La-Budde demanded a count of the vote "to know if the Democrats want me," but the convention chairman ruled him out of order and he was elected by acclamation.
Mrs. Catherine Corcoran, Madison, was reelected vice chairman.

Utilities Plank
Probably the most marked change in the platform on which Democrats ran in the primary election was in the plank on public utilities. The plank now expresses agreement with Franklin D. Roosevelt's stand on the principles of regulation of utilities by commissions and pledges the continuation of the policy of the present Public Service commission.

"Wisconsin should not be permitted to part with the platform on which sovereignty or control over its resources," the plank says in part.
"If the operation of wise and just regulatory commissions cannot protect this sovereignty, then the only other alternative is the appearance of public ownership."

In addition to pledging a reduction of the budget by at least 25 per cent, the plank on taxation proposes the "overhauling and revising of our entire system of taxation so as to relieve us of the present excessive taxation." The plank urges a reduction of maximum taxes now permitted to call local units, semi-annual payment of taxes, and immediate reduction in the number of commissions and "speedy dismissal from the payroll of all unnecessary and non-essential office holders and the abolition of their offices."

Members of the Democratic state central committee for the Eighth district are: Harry Kelley, Manitowish-co; W. F. Coffey, Marinette-co; Katherine Sullivan, Kaukauna; Carl Ande, Luxemburg, Sig Lin-gelbach, Oconto.

Charge False Arrest, Ask $25,000 Damages

Wausau—(P)—Damage suits charging false arrest and demanding $25,000 of sheriff Simon
Schunburger, District Attorney
Walter A. Graunke, Deputy Sheriff Joseph Andreksi and Policemen
Joseph H. Hoover and Rudolph Marshall of the Wausau department were filed here yesterday.

An action asking $150,000 was started by George R. Huggins, who charged false arrest and imprisonment on Aug. 12. Apprehended on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, he was acquitted by a jury in county court.

Huggins' wife, Mabel, who was not arrested, in another suit asks damages of $10,000.

Michigan Will Oppose
Badger Boundary Plea

Washington—(P)—Attorney General Paul W. Vorhies of Michigan has filed with the supreme court an answer opposing the motion by Wisconsin for a change in the location of boundary between the two states in Green Bay.

He contended the boundary fixed by the court in its decision in March, 1826, was correct and that any effort by Wisconsin at this time to change it comes too late.

WOMAN IS SENTENCED Milwaukee—(P)—Mrs. Emma Bitker, 27, the town of Granville woman who put poison in her husband's coffee, was sentenced by Judge George E. Shaughnessy to day to serve from one to three years in the house of correction.

Prohibition Party Asks State Laws to End Liquor Trade

Madison—(P)—Enactment of state laws to abolish the liquor traffic was pledged in the platform of the Prohibition party of Wisconsin which met in convention here yesterday.

Pledging enactment of such laws,
the party advocates vigorous enforcement of the national prohibition laws.
The platform declares the Republican party has demonstrated "its alliance with the criminal liquor interests, and the Democratic party openly avows its allegiance thereto, while the Socialist party proposes to make the state the purveyor of those beverages which debauch and debauch its citizens."

It proposes needful public works to meet the unemployment problem, pledges economy in the administration of the state government by consolidation of departments and commissions, promises more effective supervision of banks, and endorses and reaffirms the planks in the national party platform.

Identify Body of Girl Found Slain On Mattoon Farm

Victim was Minneapolis Girl, Marinette-co Sheriff Announces

Marinette—(P)—Sheriff Lester B.
Lindsey of Marinette-co announced today that the girl whose nude body was found in a shack near Mattoon, Wis., on Oct. 27, 1931, had been positively identified as Sylvia Noyen, alias Verma Fournier, of Minneapolis.

The girl had been shot and her body tossed about 30 feet from a highway in Shawano-co at a spot about four miles south of Mattoon.
She was buried in a cemetery at Shawano after attempts at identification proved futile.

Sheriff Lindsey refused to reveal how or by whom identification was made until he talked with Dist.
Atty. Louis Cattau of Shawano-co.
Cattau was expected here later in the day. The sheriff said, however, that the girl is supposed to have been employed at the Green Lantern, the Plaza inn, and the Brown Jug, cafes in Green Bay.

The girl's body was found almost a year ago by Gus Schenke, a farmhand, who was attracted to a spot in the pasture of Bert Lane
by the strange antics of his dog.
The girl had been killed by a bullet, probably .32 calibre, which struck her in the face. It had been fired from close range, for about the wound were marks of powder burns.

Relatives of missing women from many states and hundreds of curious persons made an almost endless procession past the body during the six weeks before it was buried, but no promising clew to her identity was uncovered.

A post-mortem examination revealed that she had been dead two days before the body was found.
District Attorney Cattau said he believed the body had been brought from a distance by automobile.
Marks on the bare feet indicated the body had been dragged over the ground.

Can Europe Come Back?

This is the sixteenth of a series of articles on the possibilities of economic recovery in Europe written by H. R. Knickerbocker, noted Newspaper writer and investigator, who visited all the countries of Europe in the preparation of the series. The seventeenth article will appear on Thursday.

(Copyright 1932 by New York Evening Post)

Paris—France was for three years the oasis in the desert of European depression. France is today an unhappy island of insecurity. She may be tomorrow the victim of the economic laws that made her yesterday their favorite.

In the problem, "Can Europe Recover," many observers on this continent have maintained that Europe can only grow better off when France grows worse off. If this is really a condition for European recovery, then the prospects today point to a fulfillment of the condition.

Paris is still the liveliest, loveliest capital in Europe. Its boulevards are jammed with traffic, its restaurants with guests, its night horizon glazes with the light of countless electric signs.

To come to France after Hungary, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Italy is to climb a crescendo of the appearance of prosperity from the wretched dugout dwellers on the periphery of Budapest to the elegant folk that throng the de luxe dance resorts of the Bois de Boulogne.

How Long Is Question
France still has fewer unemployed than any great country in the world. But how long will this last?
She still has more gold than any nation or than all the other nations of Europe. How long can she keep it?

The small number of jobless and the great hoard of gold are today's economic surfaces. Because the French hold the key to Europe's economic future, it is worth expend-ing some attention to look at and then beneath the superficies of the French position.

One surface now uppermost for consideration is that presented by France's capacity to pay her debt to America. The significant figures on the French debt are, to begin with, as follows:

Witnesses Must Testify Before Dominion Will Act on Request

Toronto—(P)—Edward Bayly, deputy attorney-general of Ontario, said today that a capias for the arrest of Martin Insull would have no authority in Canada unless certain legal steps were taken here to make it effective.

Mr. Insull and his brother,
Samuel Insull, were indicted by a Cook-co grand jury for embezzlement and grand larceny as a result of investigation of the affairs of the public utilities companies which they control. He came here today from Orillia, where he has been living.

To effect extradition, said Mr.
Bayly, it would be necessary to obtain a provincial warrant under the Dominion Extradition act, and then conduct an inquiry at which witnesses for their certified depositions would be examined. The final ruling on the extradition proceeding would come from the government at Ottawa.

Mr. Bayly said he had had no word from States' Attorney Swanson of Chicago in regard to the In-sull case.

Chicago—(P)—Two representatives of the state's attorney's office left today by airplane for Toronto, Ont., (Canada) bearing a capias for the arrest of Martin Insull.

Insull, named with his brother Samuel in indictments charging embezzlement, larceny, and larceny by bailee in connection with the collapse of the Insull utility system's financing companies, was reported to have left Orillia, Ont., today by train for Toronto.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson announced he had asked the chief of police of Toronto and Hon.
E. Bayly, deputy attorney general at Toronto, to watch all boats and trains for Insull.

ASKED ABOUT COSTS
Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Extradition proceedings seeking the return to Chicago of Samuel Insull, from Paris and his brother, Martin In-sull, from Canada, to answer indictments returned by the Cook-co grand jury yesterday, were temporarily stopped by Gov. Louis L.
Emmerson today, to give State's Attorney John Swanson of Cook-co time to say how Cook-co will bear the expense of the extradition.

Traffic Tied Up During Dry Raid in Washington

Washington—(P)—Traffic in one of the capital's most fashionable sections was tied up nearly an hour last night while police and federal prohibition agents raided a building that formerly housed a diplomatic mission.

H. W. Wood, 35, was arrested and charged with illegal possession and sale of liquor, and two Negro butlers, garbed in knee-pants, were taken into custody with him.

The 65 year old congressman went to the hospital on September 23 to receive treatment for a cardiac on his neck. Following an operation to remove the carbuncle, he was kept at the hospital for observation because he had long been affected with diabetes. His condition at first improved but last Saturday it took a turn for the worse.

Linthicum was a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket from the Fourth Maryland district. He had served in the house continuously since 1911.
The Marylander was an outstanding leader in the anti-prohibition block in congress. He was co-author last session of a repeal bill which was the first to reach a vote in the house since prohibition went into effect.

Josephine Roth Must Face Circuit Court

Portage, Wis.—(P)—Josephine
Roth of Beloit, sweetheart of Frank Tyhus who confessed participating in the killing of Robert A. Wilson, Kenosha real estate man, must stand trial at the December term of circuit court on a charge of being an accessory before and after the fact.

The woman was bound over for trial by Justice of the Peace Frank Gruner, before whom Miss Roth appeared for a preliminary examination Monday. Gruner announced his decision today.

The action against Mrs. Roth hinges on promissory notes which Wilson was forced to sign before he was slain on his farm near Lodi, Tyhus, who hanged himself in the jail at Wisconsin Dells, tried to force collection on the notes.

The state will endeavor to establish that Miss Roth filled in a portion of the notes.

Senator Frazier Will Not Support Roosevelt

Washington—(P)—Senator Frazier (R. N. D.) who recently announced he would not support President Hoover for reelection, said today that he would not support Governor Roosevelt neither.
"I think President Hoover's Des Moines speech was mighty good from his point of view," he told newspapermen.

"I don't agree with some statements, but the speech was a well prepared defense of his own position."
Frazier, who recently returned from the west, said "there has been a change of sentiment toward the president in the middle west due in part to disappointment in Governor Roosevelt and also due to the conclusion that President Hoover is not to blame for everything."

Highlights of Speech

Des Moines, Iowa—(P)—Here are some highlights from President Hoover's speech:

"Something infinitely deeper and of greater portent has happened to the world than any reaction from our own reckless speculation and exploitation. We are contending today with forces at home and abroad which still threaten the safety of civilization."

"Let no man tell you it could not be worse. It could be so much worse that these days now, distressing as they are, would look like veritable prosperity... Had it not been for the immediate and unprecedented actions of our government things would be infinitely worse today."

"Let's be thankful for the presence in Washington of a Republican administration."

"Three of the great perils were invisible except to those who had the responsibility of dealing with the situation. The first... steady strangulation of credit through the removal of three billions of gold and currency by foreign drains and by hoarding... federal revenues fell by nearly one-half...
The third peril... that of being forced off the gold stand-

Hurley to Open Drive in State At Ripon Oct. 8

Other Speakers Also Announced for Badger State Republican Fight

Milwaukee.—(P)—Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, will open President Hoover's campaign for re-election in Wisconsin next Saturday, speaking from the porch of the schoolhouse at Ripon, Wis., where more than 75 years ago the Republican party was founded.

Announcement of the address was made by J. E. Fitzgibbon, director of the state Hoover-Curtis organization with headquarters in Milwaukee. More than 500 Republicans from the Sixth Congressional district, and delegations from every other district in the state, are expected to attend.

"The Hurley address will offer Wisconsin voters their first opportunity to obtain directly President Hoover's answer to the expressions of the Democratic presidential candidate on leading national issues," Fitzgibbon said.

The committee selected to welcome Secretary Hurley will be headed by George Howitt, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, commander of the American legion, and Col. Roy Farland, of St. Johns Military institute, Delaware.

"Secretary Hurley is the first of a series of prominent national speakers who will talk in Wisconsin during our campaign in behalf of the Hoover-Curtis ticket," Fitzgibbon said. "Among those already assured to Wisconsin are Senator Hiram Bingham, Arch Coleman, assistant postmaster general, former Governor Nestor of North Dakota, Assistant Navy Secretary Jahncke, and Ray Lyness, Wisconsin.

In the Hurley address, set for 2 p. m., will be delivered in the Ripon college gymnasium.

Educators Help Jobless Persons

Induce Young Men to Continue School Work if They Can't Find Jobs

Madison.—(P)—More than fifty cities of Wisconsin have taken steps to discourage jobless young men from taking to the open road in search of work and a living, by offering educational advantages.

The drive to prevent young high school graduates from deviating from their life plans because of the depression was started last spring at a meeting of educators called by John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction.

A committee was named which included Mr. Callahan, George Hambrecht, state board of vocational education; E. G. Doudna, state board of normal regents; and Chester D. Snell, university extension division.

As a result of the committee's recommendations, educators in 55 cities are enrolling jobless high school graduates and others in high schools as postgraduate students; in vocational schools for occupational, home-making, commercial, or general courses, and in the university extension division for correspondence courses; for college or university credit or non-credit.

Some local boards of education are assisting worthy students by agreeing to refund one-half of the instruction fees upon their completion of the course. Some others are assuming the full cost. Several cities have set aside rooms in schools for students who wish to study correspondence courses under supervision.

Mother, Daughter Injured in Crash

Mrs. H. Becker, Kaukauna, And Irene Becker Hurt

A Kaukauna woman, Mrs. H. Becker, 111 E. Ducharme-st., and her daughter, Irene, 14, were injured in an automobile accident at 415 yesterday afternoon at the corner of Wisconsin-ave and Lemniah-st.

Mrs. Becker and her daughter were riding with Mr. Becker, who was driving east on Wisconsin-ave, and A. W. Hoffmann, 849 E. South-st., was going west on Wisconsin-ave and turning to go south on Lemniah-st when the collision occurred.

Mrs. Becker and her daughter were taken to a doctor's office for treatment by Dr. Edward Ratzman and Fred Arritt in the police car. Mrs. Becker suffered a bruise on her left knee and the daughter suffered a severe gash over her left eye. The front of Becker's car and the side of Hoffmann's car were damaged.

Dates are set for Go-to-School Night. The date for the Appleton high school go-to-school night was set for Wednesday evening, Nov. 16, at a meeting of the principal's cabinet Monday afternoon. The cabinet's made up of the heads of departments.

Administration problems also were discussed.

Moderate Gains Are Recorded in Business in U. S.

Rapid Advances in Textile Industry Most Favorable Situation

Washington.—(P)—Moderate improvement in business activity since late in August, marked by rapid gains in the textile industry, was reported today by the commerce department in its October survey of current business.

Summarizing the business situation, the department said a number of major indicators had moved upward "by more than the usual seasonal amount." It continued:

"The movement has been generated largely by the demand for consumer goods as reflected in the rapid gains in the textile industry, and an upturn in the leather and food industries."

"So far the heavy industries have felt little stimulation and show a continued tendency to lag. Steel mill activity has risen to only about 17 per cent of capacity, the automobile industry is seasonally inactive with production at a low level, and the slight advances in construction have afforded but little support to the productive end of the industry."

"Fuel up car loadings during the four weeks ended Sept. 17 have been increasing and the gains have been in excess of the usual seasonal amounts for this period. . . . August statistics on retail sales reveal that consumer purchases did not expand appreciably during that period. . . . Available figures indicate an acceleration in September."

"The upward movement of commodity prices, which extended into September, has stimulated trading in some lines. Industrial production turned upward in August after declining steadily since last February. . . . Manufacturing output was up 5 per cent."

"Factory employment and pay rolls were higher in August, interrupting the long series of declines. . . . The financial situation was further ameliorated during August and September. Security prices have moved upward, money in circulation has declined slightly in contrast to the usual seasonal movement; bank failures have been less numerous and the return flow of gold to this country has continued. . . . However, the liquidation of bank credit continues. . . ."

English Students Are Below Average

Sophomore English pupils at Appleton high school fall about five points below the national average, the results of the Cross English diagnostic test taken at the school reveal.

The test consisted of exercises in spelling, pronunciation, punctuation, pronoun forms, idiomatic expressions, faulty expressions and complete sentences.

Princess Denounced by Carol for Accusation

Bucharest, Rumania.—(P)—King Carol bitterly denounced today the accusation credited to his former wife, Princess Helen, by a London newspaper, that he had cut short the visit of Crown Prince Michael because of the publicity given it.

"How untrue, unjust and unfair!" the king exclaimed to those near him after he had been given the gist of his former wife's remarks in a long telephone conversation yesterday.

"To think that this should be thrown in my face," he said, "when during the two years of my exile in Paris I was not permitted to see Michael once, although I repeatedly sought permission to do so."

Later the king suggested that the interview probably was "invented" and not authentic. In any case, he said, it certainly did not agree with the facts.

Both Candidates Appeal to Voters To "Jump" Parties

Democrats are Making Particular Effort to Break Party Lines

BY BYRON PRICE
Washington.—Viewing the campaign in its larger, long-time aspects, the student of politics will be much interested in some remarks made by the Hon. James A. Farley as he arrived, flushed and smiling, at the New York termination of his swing through the west.

"There is now in process of creation a great liberal party," made up of persons of all shades of political belief," said the democratic national chairman. "We are making political history these days under the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Of course substantially the same thing has been said on numerous other occasions when nothing came of it. But in this instance the democratic chairman cited chapter and verse to show on what his expectations were based; and whether his conclusions were justified or not, he at least was describing a set of circumstances full of dramatic interest.

Making Political History

If for no other reason than the gigantic scale on which it was projected, the democratic effort to break across party lines has made political history.

Governor Roosevelt allotted three full weeks to his western trip at a crowded period of the campaign, and in every speech he invited insurgent republicans to his standard. In California he praised publicly the insurgent republican Senator, Hiram Johnson, and was answered by a statement of appreciation in which Johnson contrasted Roosevelt with Hoover.

In New Mexico he invited to the platform with him the republican insurgent Senator, Bronson Cutting. In Nebraska he was introduced by the insurgent republican Senator, George W. Norris, and the expressions of regard and confidence were mutual.

During most of this time Chairman Farley let other problems accumulate on his desk in New York while he joined in the western quest. It was at the conclusion of an extraordinary series of conferences that the chairman returned eastward announcing that birth of "a great liberal party" was at hand.

G. O. F. Side Of It

One of those who promptly predicted that nothing would come of it all was the Hon. Everett Sanders, republican national chairman.

On the day Farley returned, Sanders gave out his own version of what was taking place in the west. His philosophy was in interesting contrast to that of the democratic chairman, for he clung tenaciously to the tenet that republicans will be republicans on election day.

"They are forgetting how terribly republican those states really are," said Sanders.

Time and election returns will tell who is correct, but regardless of the outcome, history will record for 1932 the most far-flung attempt of contemporary times to realize the old dream of political realignment.

Depends On Circumstances

As to the future course of the experiment, everything must depend on circumstances.

If Governor Roosevelt is defeated, will he or anyone else be able soon to attain the goal of "liberal party" leadership which Farley now thinks is so near?

If Governor Roosevelt is elected, will he be able to consolidate into a permanent working organization the various elements which helped to bring him victory?

These are questions which belong to the next immediate phase of the evolution of party politics.

Committee to Open Bids on Two Stokers

The county board building and grounds committee will meet at the courthouse Thursday afternoon to open bids on the proposed installation of automatic stokers in the county courthouse and jail.

The bids are to be tabulated and referred to the county board at its meeting next month. The same afternoon the county board printing committee will meet at the courthouse to allow bids.

Chief Prim Attends State Convention

Police Chief George T. Prim was at Oshkosh today attending the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Wisconsin Chiefs of Police association. Chief Prim is treasurer of the state association and Chief R. H. McCart of Kaukauna is secretary. The convention will close Tuesday afternoon. Captain P. J. Vaughn is in charge of the department during the chief's absence.

2 Weeks in Paris

Paris.—(P)—The Rumanian legation here said Crown Prince Michael of Rumania, who left London today after a visit with his mother, Princess Helen, would arrive in Paris tonight to spend a fortnight in accordance with a schedule drawn up when he left Bucharest. The announcement said he wanted to see the auto show which opens here tomorrow.

12 Points Advocated by Hoover in Iowa Speech

(By the Associated Press)
President Hoover, speaking at Des Moines last night, listed the following 12 points in outlining what he called "the policies of the Republican party":

- 1.—Maintenance and possible elevation of the protective tariff on farm products as "the very basis of safety to American agriculture."
- 2.—Revision of the agricultural marketing act, including repeal of the stabilization clause.
- 3.—Creation of a program for "the reorganization of agriculture so as to divert lands from unprofitable to profitable use and to avoid the cultivation of lands the chief return of which is the poverty and misery of those who lived upon them."
- 4.—Speeding up the completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway "as a fundamental relief to agriculture by cheaper transportation."
- 5.—Leniency in the collection of farm loans totaling $120,000,000.
- 6.—Readjustment of lands taxes through a conference of tax experts to be called "as soon as the national election is out of the way."
- 7.—Restoration of normal short term credit to agriculture through the federal reserve system, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the intermediate credit banks and the 10 new agricultural credit corporations.
- 8.—Use of Reconstruction corporation funds to "make credits available for sales of farm products in new markets abroad."
- 9.—A recommendation to the next congress for further reorganization of the federal land banks, to enable them to expand in the refinancing of farm mortgages.
- 10.—Promotion of world stability through disarmament and maintained peace as a factor "in the recovery and expansion of our agricultural markets."
- 11.—Opposition to cancellation of war debts, but the recommendation "that any annual payment on the foreign debt be used for the specific purpose of securing an expansion of the foreign markets for American agricultural products."
- 12.—An effort to reverse the "process of deflation" in connection with farm prices "and bring things back to their real values."

Swappers' Convention In Georgia Community

Dalton, Ga.—(P)—Men who comb a living off the mountainsides of north Georgia came down from the hills Monday to swap horses and yards, do a little whittling and barter again like folk did in the bustle and buggy era.

It was the first swappers' convention held here in many years and things went off swell. Business men said things hummed.

Horse trading is as old as man's desires to swap anything from a barlow knife to a farm. Word that there will be a swap at a certain place is spread among the farmers and they set that day aside to trade for what they want and trade off what they don't want.

The women cook a big dinner; the boys get scrubbed behind the ears and little girls get their hair plaited and tied with ribbons. The whole bunch including the dogs are invited into wagons (or automobiles) and the family drives to town.

The women go to the stores to buy and the men gather to trade. Each animal is examined thoroughly and if a bargain is struck it's closed. Horse traders don't whine after they swap. A man might trade five or six times in one day before he gets the horse he wants and he might come to town with a plug and go home with a fine steed.

Swaps also are made for farm equipment—a plough for a hoe, or anything that a fellow wants to trade.

It wasn't many years ago when the Irish horse traders worked all the south. Many fortunes have been started at a country swap. In those days swaps were held during court week and farmers came to town in covered wagons and camped.

Chapple Renews Fight for Votes

Senatorial Nominee Says Present Critical Time For Nation

Waukeesa.—(P)—John B. Chapple, Republican nominee for United States Senator, started another campaign tour here last night with a warning that the people of the United States are facing one of the critical times of history.

The senatorial nominee, after resting at his home at Ashland following the primary election, came here to speak at a meeting of party workers after attending the Republican platform convention in Madison. He has scheduled daily talks for the next three weeks and will visit all sections of the state.

"We are at a cross-road," Chapple said. "On way leads to the destruction of the American system. The other leads to a return to the economic and moral road from which we have been detoured. Secret and disguised efforts are being made to undermine the faith of the American people in the system of economics and government built up by our American forefathers."

Chapple cited statements of President Hoover, former President Coolidge, Pope Pius XI, Premier MacDonald of England, President Van Hinderburg of Germany, George Washington, and other leaders of government, industry, and religion as evidence upholding his conviction "that undercover radicalism and the more obvious open type are the greatest barriers to recovery and must be wiped out if the people of the United States want to preserve their opportunities of personal self-improvement."

Long Food Queues Bring New Shops To Russian Cities

Moscow.—(P)—The abolition of long queues at stores is sought by the Soviet government through the opening of additional shops for meat, butter, cheese and bread.

The shortage in the first three foods makes them available only in limited quantities in the state's "open," or high-priced stores operated to compete with the private market, and the few shops which handle them are besieged daily by housewives.

Such food is available in the government's cheaper cooperative stores only on certain days and long lines of people, hoping to buy before the supply is exhausted, form hours before the stores open.

The queues lengthen as the day wears on and disband only when the stores close or when it is announced that meat, butter and cheese stocks are exhausted.

There is no shortage of bread in Moscow but new dispensing stations were ordered for it also, so that the demand might be more conveniently supplied.

Await Russian Stand on World Trade Conclave

Officials Also Wonder if Soviet Will Make Reservations

Washington.—(P)—Whether Soviet Russia will participate in the forthcoming world economic conference is a subject of keen international speculation shared by capital officials.

Also of special interest in discussions here is the question of what reservations, if any, Russia will make if the Soviet government decides to accept the invitation to the London monetary and economic conference to be held early next year.

The United States agreed to enter on condition that tariff rates and war debts would not be discussed. Frederick M. Sackett, American ambassador to Germany, and Norman H. Davis, represented the United States at Geneva on the organization committee for the conference which decided to throw the meeting open to non-members as well as members of the league of nations, thus making it world-wide in its scope.

Since the Geneva conference called by the great powers in 1922 to meet with representatives of Soviet Russia in an effort to restore Russia to the family of nations by enabling that country to get money for rehabilitation, Soviet Russia has not participated in the various important economic conferences.

The Geneva conference resulted in a separate commercial treaty between Germany and Soviet Russia, to the consternation of the allied powers. Since that time the Soviet government has confined its diplomatic endeavors largely to the establishment of trade relations with neighboring Asiatic countries, although recently it has extended its trade in Germany and Italy.

The recent British empire conference at Ottawa disclosed the opposition of Canada to British trade relations with Soviet Russia because of alleged Russian dumping. Consequently, Canada's attitude toward Russian participation in the

Rooney Is President Of Student Council

George Rooney has been named president of the Student Council of Appleton high school, following the resignation of Robert Rule, elected several weeks ago. Rooney's office of vice president will be filled by Clifford Burton. Sydney Dutcher is secretary and treasurer.

Rule, who also is senior class president and basketball captain, was unable to hold a third office.

The council heard a report on the first Student Council dance, and discussed the finance plan, which is sponsored by the council.

Barn and Granary Destroyed by Fire

Loss on Daniel Joyce Farm, Town of Chilton, Covered by Insurance

Fire believed to have been caused by sparks from the engine of a threshing machine, destroyed a 40 by 80 foot barn, full of grain and hay, a granary and silo on the farm of Daniel Joyce, town of Chilton, Tuesday afternoon. The fire spread so rapidly the threshing crew was unable to remove the separator, set up in the barn, from the burning building. The Chilton fire department responded to the call but the fire had gained such headway the buildings could not be saved. The loss is covered by insurance.

The proposed London economic and monetary conference is a direct outgrowth of the Lausanne conference which perfected a European agreement on the reparations question and decided to call an international conference in which the United States and other nations not directly concerned with reparations might participate.

City to Provide Poor With Fuel Pending Drive

Permanent Relief Plan to Be Worked Out at Future Meeting

Fuel for all indigent families will be provided by the city public relief department until the drive for the Appleton Welfare and Relief council has been completed, it was decided at a meeting of the welfare council and public relief officials at city hall Tuesday evening. After the campaign is completed the two groups will meet again and work out a permanent plan for the provision of fuel.

All fresh vegetables will be eliminated from the rations for indigent families, and workers were urged to keep the monthly cost per family, for groceries, down to an average of $6. Every attempt will be made to make the welfare council funds stretch over until the treasury has been replenished by the new drive.

Judge F. V. Heinenmann offered the use of quarters in which to store cabbage if the city wishes to purchase winter vegetables in large quantities.

The welfare council storeroom in the basement of Hotel Northern will be kept open one afternoon a week as usual.

Open Bids on Road Jobs in This Region

Three road jobs in this vicinity were among those on which bids were opened at the state highway office at Madison last week. The jobs and the low bidders are: Waukegan-New London road, Waukegan, 2.43 miles on Highway 54, Frank Mashuda, Milwaukee, $83,779.62; Forest Junction road, Castletown, 1.1 miles on Highway 10, Krueger Construction company, Algoma, $68,864.71; Weyauwega-Waupaca road, Wisconsin Bridge and Iron Works, Milwaukee, $41,215.50. The first two are bids on grading and the second is a bid on a bridge.

Recount Puts Wheeler Ahead By 32 Ballots

14 of 46 Precincts in County Have Been Rechecked by Board

F. F. Wheeler today took the lead in the race for the Republican nomination for district attorney over Samuel Sigman by 32 votes, as the canvassing board, in session at the courthouse, completed its recount of the ballots cast in all Appleton wards and in the first two wards in Kaukauna. Up to the present time the recount shows a net gain of 20 votes for Wheeler, a net gain of six votes for Schmieg, and a net loss of 37 votes for Sigman. Totals, subtracting these present net gains and losses from the official totals for the three candidates, would show the following results: Wheeler, 5,277; Sigman, 5,245; and Schmieg, 5,177.

The canvassing board thus far has completed the recount in 14 of the 46 precincts in the county. The largest precincts have been completed and there now appears to be a possibility that the recount will be completed this week. The race between Wheeler and Sigman is still nip and tuck. Tabulations taken at any given hour are likely to be changed as soon as the next precinct is tallied.

One outstanding fact, however, is evident. There have been glaring errors committed in many precincts. Every precinct, the canvassing board is finding, has errors in tallies, in tabulations, errors in totals or errors of some other form.

More Errors

Six more uninitiated ballots were found by the canvassing board in the four precincts recounted since yesterday noon. These were being held out as questionable, making the total now being held 86, of which 41 are Wheeler's, 28 are Schmieg's and 17 are Sigman's. A decision on whether these votes will be counted will be given after the recount ends.

Wheeler had a net gain of six votes since yesterday noon while

Private Funeral Rites For Waukesha Banker

Waukesha (P)—Private funeral services for Andrew J. Frame, 88, widely known banker, will be held at his home here at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Co-workers in the Waukesha National bank, the institution of which he was president more than 50 years, will be pallbearers. Burial will be in Prairie Home cemetery here. His death yesterday was attributed by physicians to complications resulting from a fall.

Sigman had a net loss of 37. This advantage was enough to push Wheeler into the lead.

The count in the Second ward, Kaukauna, where Sigman lost 30 votes, was challenged by Sigman, who demanded that the election board be called in to be questioned in connection with the discrepancy between their report on the vote and the recount total. The board reported 123 votes for Sigman while the recount showed he received only 93 votes. The canvassing board under the law, must call in the recount for questioning and Judge Fred V. Hennemann, who is chairman of the canvassers, said the Kaukauna election board would be summoned as soon as the recount was completed. The decision to call in this election board also may result in the filing of petitions to call in other election board officials for questioning, especially in those wards where serious mistakes were found.

Sample Ballots

The hitherto unofficial report that sample ballots had been used in some precincts when the supply of regular ballots was exhausted, was confirmed yesterday afternoon when seven sample ballots were found in the first precinct of the Sixth ward. The canvassing board immediately decided to count the ballots, as the law permits their use if they are properly signed by the election clerk, as all these ballots were.

The six questionable ballots held out yesterday came from the two precincts of the Sixth ward, one being found in the first precinct and five in the second. No uninitiated ballots were found in either of the two Kaukauna wards.

Following is a table showing the recount and official totals for each candidate, and the gain or loss in each case: (The last four precincts were counted since yesterday noon.)

Stop a COLD the First Day!

Taken Promptly, this Four-Way Remedy Will Usually Stop a Cold the First Day and Save You Much Suffering as Well as the Danger of Serious Complications!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started. Once a cold fastens its grip on you, it becomes twice as hard to remove. And a cold lodged in the system may lead to something worse.

Don't hope to kill a cold with merely local or external applications. A cold is a germ attack, an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment.

Don't hope to kill a cold, either with anything except a COLD remedy. A cure-all is self-deception. Many preparations which people commonly take for a cold actually make the relief of a cold more difficult because these preparations are constipating and also make the system acid.

The Required Effects

The thing to take for a cold or case of gripe is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine — because it does the four things necessary, in the way that is necessary.

First of all, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly — the first step in knocking a cold. Secondly, it kills the cold germs in the system, expels the poisonous infec-

Fire Prevention Week to be Held From Oct. 9-15

Chief McGillan Urges That Safety Measures be Followed Through Year

Fire prevention week will be observed this year from Oct. 9 to 15, but Fire Chief George P. McGillan points out to Appleton residents that for safety's sake it is much wiser to observe a few of the cautions advanced for the week throughout the year, and particularly at the opening of the fall season.

Chief McGillan, discussing today the hazards that come with the falling leaves, urged that residents of Appleton help to keep insurance rates in the city at their present low rate by eliminating fire losses through precautionary measures.

Use Naphtha Outside

In the fall, he pointed out, many housewives, re-arranging closet space or storing clothing for the winter, clean clothing at home. It is not safe, he said, to have naphtha or gasoline inside the house at any time. In cleaning clothing with these materials, housewives are warned that they should do the cleaning out-of-doors and leave the clothing outside to dry very thoroughly and to air before taking it into the house and storing it. The fumes from these combustible materials are very dangerous, and extreme caution should be exercised in using them.

Another one of the warnings issued by Chief McGillan concerned rubbish, which is being cleaned out of residences at this time of the year, and disposed of. It is wise, he said, to place rubbish at the curb in front of the house, where it will be picked up by city trucks, or, if it must be burned, the fire should be watched and should not be built near buildings.

Have Furnaces Inspected

Furnaces and stoves should be inspected before the winter sets in. Chimneys should be cleaned and the entire system checked. Particularly should care be exercised to see that there are no holes in the metal stacks running from the furnace to the chimney, and that there is no rubbish near the furnace nor near the chimney or hot pipes in the attic.

Asbes should be kept in metal containers rather than in wooden barrels or boxes. The containers should be emptied by city trucks and the ashes carried away.

With the advent of cold weather there comes another serious hazard, this one to life and health: the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning. When the weather becomes cold, cars refuse to start quickly, and motorists frequently permit the car to idle in order to warm it up. If this is done, it should be done in the outdoors.

Under no conditions should the garage doors be left shut while the car is running. Chief McGillan said, Carbon monoxide is odorless, and before it is detected will render its victim unconscious and unable to help himself. It is often produced by gasoline motors.

It is also advisable, he said, to keep the windows of the car open slightly when running to create a circulation of air which will carry off the poisonous carbon monoxide fumes.

Many Women Hear Discussion by Miss Dorothy Bethurum

The first of the series of lectures on Shakespeare's plays by Miss Dorothy Bethurum of the English department of Lawrence college, given as a part of the Appleton Woman's club program, was presented Monday afternoon to a group of women that filled the classroom in Main hall. Miss Bethurum opened the course with a learned and fascinating discussion of Shakespeare's England.

For a period of nine more weeks Miss Bethurum will give a lecture at 2:30 every Monday afternoon at Main hall. Admission is gained on Woman's club membership cards.

Next Monday under the title "Shakespeare's Apprenticeship," the instructor will discuss "Comedy of Errors," "Two Gentlemen of Verona," and "Love's Labor's Lost." The following Monday, under the general heading, "The Romantic Fancy," she will talk about "Midsummer Night's Dream."

The fourth lecture, "High Comedy," will deal with "Much Ado About Nothing" and "Twelfth Night," and the fifth, "Comedy and

Council Studies Street Widening

Aldermen to Consider Petition From Appleton Residents

The widening of Appleton-st. and the completion of the widening of Superior-st will be discussed at the meeting of the common council Wednesday evening. A petition from Appleton-st. property owners, asking for the widening of the street from Midway to the railroad tracks, will be presented, and the street and bridge committee will recommend that the council authorize the widening of the small section of Superior-st from College-ave to the alley on the east side. The widening of most of Superior-st has been completed, but because of objections from the Aid Association of Lutherans it was impossible to widen this small section.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., may present a report on the request of the school board for the construction of a new high school. The petition was referred to him at the last meeting of the council.

Order Cops to Check Autos for Licenses

Outagamie-co motorcycle patrolmen today were given instructions to start a rigid checkup of automobiles which are being driven without 1932 licenses. The instructions were given by Sheriff John Lappen and Highway Commissioner F. R. Appleton after both officers reported many cars on the highways with 1931 licenses. Both officers, Charles Seidl and Peter Van Oudenhoef, plan to start this week on a drive that will bring offenders into court.

Woman Killed, Three Injured In Auto Crash

Mrs. Henry Garvey, Town
Of Freedom, Dies
From Injuries

Mrs. Henry Garvey, 35, town of Freedom, was fatally injured about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the car in which she was riding with her husband, Henry Garvey, 36, and their daughter, Shirley, 5, and a machine driven by Dr. E. A. Mayer, 134 E. Second-st., Kaukauna, collided at the intersection of County Trunks J and S in the town of Freedom.

Mrs. Garvey's skull was fractured and she died about 7:15 last night. Mr. Garvey suffered an extremely bad cut on the back of his neck and severe bruises, cuts and lacerations about the head, arms, face and body. Attending physicians said his condition was critical but not serious. The daughter suffered bruises on the hand and after being treated at St. Elizabeth hospital was taken to her home. Mr. Garvey is still confined to the hospital. Dr. Mayer suffered several fractured ribs and lacerations.

The Garvey car was going east on County Trunk S and Dr. Mayer was driving west on County Trunk J when the accident occurred. The Garvey car was demolished and the Mayer car was badly damaged.

An investigation of the accident was being conducted today by Edward E. Lutz, undersheriff, Stanley E. Stadi, district attorney, and R. R. Appleton, highway commissioner.

Survivors are her husband; three daughters, Alma Alvera, and Shirley; six sons, Vance, Jerry, Lowell, Percy, Milo and Vernon, all at home; father, Martin Weyenberg, Freedom; five sisters, Mrs. Peter Vandenberg, Mrs. Frank Murphy, Mrs. Henry Schommer, Freedom; Mrs. Minnie Vosters and Mrs. Pat Murphy, Appleton; five brothers, John, Peter and Cyril, Weyenberg; Freedom; William of Appleton; and Theodore of Vancouver, B. C. She was a member of the Christian Mothers' society and St. Therese society of St. Nicholas church, Appleton. Friends may call at the home, Freedom, from Thursday afternoon until the time of the funeral at 9 o'clock Saturday morning at the home. Services will be held at 9:30 at St. Nicholas church at Freedom, with the Rev. A. W. Van Dyke in charge. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Shoe Production Boosted By Ten Million Pairs

Washington —(AP)— Production of shoes in the United States in August increased more than 10,000,000 pairs as compared with July.

The commerce department reported today that shoe production in August amounted to 30,717,759 pairs of boots and shoes other than rubber as compared with 20,442,068 in July.

The report showed that Massachusetts manufactured 25.3 per cent of the August production; New York 19.4 per cent; Missouri 11.7 per cent; New Hampshire 7.2 per cent; Maine 6.6 per cent; Illinois 6.2 per cent; Wisconsin 5.2 per cent; Pennsylvania 4.6 per cent; Ohio 3.8 per cent and the other states 9.5 per cent.

Shoes for women constituted 44 per cent of the total, boys and shoes for men 22 per cent and slippers and moccasins for house wear 11 per cent.

Urge Farmers to Use Lime in Fall State Expert Points Out Work Should be Done Now; Tells Why

Is it better to lime the land in the fall than in the spring? That question is being asked, right now, by farmers in Outagamie-co, as well as in other sections of the state. C. J. Chapman of the soils staff of the University of Wisconsin answers "Yes," and he gives these reasons for saying so:

"Lime this fall for it is cheaper to do so now than in the spring. Lime this fall because lime is more effective applied in advance of seeding. It has a long time to work into the soil and to get ready to help the crop. Lime this fall when we have more time and are not rushed with spring work. Lime this fall when it is easier hauling on the roads and in the fields. Lime this fall before we have spent the money for less needed or desirable things. Lime this fall because it pays to do so, for it will enable us to increase our acreage of alfalfa, a cheap source of protein feed."

Mr. Chapman offers these suggestions about the use of lime:

"Lime this fall, but do not plow the lime under. Rather apply it to the fall plowed lands, or apply on corn stubble and then double disk before plowing, or work it into the corn stubble with a quack digger or field cultivator. Lime this fall but do not waste it on fields that do not need it. Have the soil tested first and find out how much lime is needed. Lime this fall from any good source of lime. Local products are usually cheapest. Local pulverizers are producing thousands of tons of good lime in the limestone districts. Make these local pulverizers grind it fine. At least 40 per cent of the lime should pass through a 60-mesh screen. Marl, paper mill sludge, sugar beet refuse, wood ashes, carbide refuse, or commercial shipped-in lime are all good sources. Lime this fall but do not buy the superfine lime unless local conditions—distance from railroad station, or peculiar soil conditions—warrant it."

Mr. Chapman believes that it will pay to lime the land even at present prices for farm crops and produce. By keeping up soil fertility we can grow more alfalfa and better crops of grain and corn and spend less for purchased feed.

Cub Pack Committee Will Meet Tonight

Committeemen from Cub Pack 3 of Oney Johnson post of the American legion will meet at 7 o'clock tonight at the Valley Council boy scout office, according to Carl Sherry, chairman. Problems of the Cub pack leaders will be discussed. There are three Cub packs in the Valley council, one in Appleton, and two in Neenah and Menasha, with a membership of 88 boys.

Board of Health To Meet Thursday

The board of health will hold its monthly meeting at 4:30 Thursday afternoon in city hall. The communication from the Appleton Water department concerning the charge for milk tests will be considered.

It Is Said--

That a number of artists have been drawn to Appleton and vicinity this week by the glory of the autumn colors. Every street in Appleton is an arch of red, gold and green, flecked with the black limbs of maples, and Lawrence campus, down river and the parks, particularly Jones park, are especially beautiful. The ground is carpeted with fallen leaves—except where groups of energetic youngsters have built Indian mounds.

That Old Man Winter's first frosty puff Tuesday morning sent Appleton people scurrying to cedar closets, fur storage rooms and attics for their winter coats, underwear, suits, and dresses. Only a few winter coats made their appearance on the streets, but in most every house the moth-eaten eyes of housewives were penetrating seams and other hiding places of the destructive insect.

Gets Priceless Data in Cosmic Ray Experiments

Pasadena, Calif. —(AP)— Back from an 8,000-mile expedition to observe the cosmic ray at varying altitudes and latitudes, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, Nobel prize winner, today began a careful study of the valuable electroscopical recordings obtained.

The observations included airplane flights to altitudes above 20,000 feet at March field, Calif., Spokane, Wash., and the Pas, Man., sounding balloon tests at Ellendale, N. D., and ground recordings on Pike's peak. The United States Army and the Canadian Royal air forces aided him in the flights.

His expedition began inauspiciously. A night squall at Lake Arrowhead in the mountains east of here sank a boat in which he had left a self-recording electroscopical. Flying Officer R. C. Gordon was reported lost in the first airplane flight at the Pas, but was later found to have been forced down on a nearby lake. At Ellendale high winds nearly defeated his attempts to launch sounding balloons.

Aside from these difficulties the observations were without incident and Dr. Millikan said the results were "highly satisfactory."

"For all practical purposes," he said, "the only preliminary study of the recordings, he clung to his theory the mysterious cosmic rays are waves, similar to X-rays, and that they strike protons and electrons from atoms, imparting to some of them energies as high as a billion volts."

Theory Challenged

This theory was challenged by Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago, while Dr. Millikan was making his tests. Dr. Compton said his observations in the Arctic circle indicated cosmic rays are electrons. He also reported that high altitude observations in the mountains of Peru showed the rays were more intensive from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., than from 10 p. m. to 4 a. m.

Dr. Millikan said he could make no definite statement until the study of his records is completed, but that so far he had found nothing to cause him to change any mind.

The eminent physicist was aided by Dr. I. S. Bowen and Prof. Victor H. Neher of the California Institute of Technology of which Dr. Millikan is the head. Dr. Bowen is in Dallas making further sounding balloon tests.

Dr. Millikan, working in cooperation with the United States Weather bureau, succeeded in launching one balloon at Ellendale. It carried a recording electroscopical, with a small parachute attached to bring it to earth when the balloon burst.

This should have reached a height of 22 miles, Dr. Millikan said, and he is hopeful that the electroscopical will be found and returned to him.

Dr. Millikan said he had developed an apathetic attitude toward automobile accidents partly because those charged with enforcing traffic laws often term them "unavoidable."

Sunset Players Club Meets Thursday Night

The Lawrence college Sunset Players club will hold their first meeting of the year at 7 o'clock Thursday evening in the Little Theater of Lawrence Memorial chapel. Charles Watkins, president, announced today.

Announcement will be made at the meeting of the first play to be given by the Sunset Players about the last part of October. The name of the play is "Arms and the Man" by Bernard Shaw.

Other officers of the club include Miss Edith Kozelka, secretary, and William Little, vice president. There are approximately 33 players in the Sunset Players club. F. Theodore Cloak, assistant professor of Public Speaking and Dramatics, is supervisor of the club.

Civic League Names Two New Directors

Directors of the First ward Civic league, meeting last night at the Y. C. A., named Karl Haugen to replace Joseph Kox on the board. Kox is city treasurer and no city officer can serve as a director of the league. G. E. Buchanan was named to replace M. J. Gehin as a director.

At the next meeting of the league on Monday, Oct. 10, at Edison school there will be a debate on the utility question. A representative of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company will present his organization's side of the rate question, and a consumer will present his side.

Safes are Soft

Those "burglar-proof" safes and locks you hear about may defy the underworld, but they're easy for Father A. R. Drathman, Los Angeles priest who's known as the "Padre of the Locks." Lock-picking for years has been one of Father Drathman's hobbies, and he has opened safes and locks just to prove it could be done, after burglars had failed.

Accidents Can be Avoided, Safety Leader Declares

Washington —(AP)— An annual toll of "thousands of lives and millions of dollars" today was laid to traffic accidents in the United States by W. P. Borland, safety director of the Interstate Commerce commission.

Addressing the twelfth annual convention of the safety section of the American Railway association, Borland said:

"For all practical purposes there is no such thing as an unavoidable accident. Particularly is this true as to a collision between two automobiles or between two trains, for someone is at fault."

"While casualties from railroad accidents have been decreasing for years, there has been a constant increase in the number on the highways."

Borland said the public had developed an apathetic attitude toward automobile accidents partly because those charged with enforcing traffic laws often term them "unavoidable."

Librarians Here For Convention

With 50 registrations up to noon today, the Wisconsin Library association opened its annual meeting this afternoon at the Methodist church. About 300 library workers are expected.

The afternoon program included greetings from F. B. Younger of the Appleton library board, a speech by the president of the association, Miss Cora Frantz of Kenosha, and an address by Dr. H. M. Wriston of Lawrence college.

The author of the autographed first editions, one of the most interesting features of the convention, will be held at the church this evening. Just prior to the address by Joseph Auslander, noted American poet. The Auslander lecture will be open to the public, with no admission charge.

Thursday morning will be devoted to discussions of relations between public, college and high school libraries, and in the afternoon there will be several addresses and group meetings.

Will Durant, famous philosopher, author and lecturer, will give a public lecture Thursday evening at the church. The convention will close Friday noon, after a business meeting and a discussion of children's library work.

"Y" Workers Have Raised $11,073

Last Report Meeting Will Be Held Tomorrow Evening
at Cafeteria

Another 109 members were reported by the teams in the annual Y. M. C. A. membership drive last night at a value of $1,603. The addition boosted the total of memberships to 621 and the value to $11,073 for the drive. The goal is 1,100 members and $16,000 in cash.

Last night's report showed 86 adult memberships reported, five boys' memberships and 18 sustaining memberships. Another report meeting will be held tonight and the last Thursday night. Founders day also will be observed by the association tomorrow night.

The Blue division of Major Arthur P. Jensen reported the most members last night and the Blue flag went to the top of the association flag pole. Capt. Phil Ottman's team outranked all others with 17 memberships and $249. The figures gave his team the big score for its membership activities and the big money bag for the value of the memberships.

Star awards last night were made by President F. J. Harwood of the association directors. There were gold stars for A. C. Remley, J. B. Clendenon, Carlton Zuehlke, F. F. Martin, and Mike Steinhauer. Silver awards for five members went to A. G. Oosterhouse, H. B. Leith, H. B. Richmond, E. E. Lam, H. Voelck, K. Pinkerton, A. Galboke, M. Poppe, W. H. Wilson, Ray Monteth, E. E. Sager, L. C. Sleeper, E. J. Treiber and Cecil Furminger.

For the entire campaign the Division of Col. George E. Johnson has reported 120 members, Col. R. E. Carncross 118 members, Major G. H. Blum 93 members, Major Arthur P. Jensen 65 members and Major F. W. Muck 74 members.

Among the teams Capt. F. W. Wright team had 50 members, Lance Horton 47, Fred Trezise 38, O. N. Johnson 32, the Rev. R. A. Garrison 28.

Remember Parents, Students Advised

Lewis A. Youtz, professor of chemistry, related the story of the Prodigal Son to Lawrence college students at the Wednesday morning convocation in Memorial chapel and pointed out the love the father had for the son after his return. He stated that emphasis should be placed on the love of the father rather than on the penitence of the son. He urged the students to remember their own parents who are at home waiting for their sons and daughters to finish school and to write to them often. He told the students their parents loved them more than anything else in the world.

George Merkel Heads Amateur Radio Club

George Merkel was named president of the Appleton Amateur Radio club at a meeting last night at the Y. M. C. A. Ervin Hensfeldt was elected secretary. William Springer, treasurer, and Harry Foster, vice president. About 25 boys and men attended the meeting. The club is setting up equipment to teach the boys about short wave radios.

Station application blanks have been received, and the members have started learning the first step in short wave radio reception and sending.

Mercury Hits 32, but Forecast Is Warmer

Something went wrong with the weather forecasts for today. Instead of being any warmer, the mercury still is low and the north winds are blowing through top coats. The weatherman accordingly has predicted fair and warmer for a second time.

The fresh north winds of the past two days will diminish late today veering over to the west. Frost again is the order of things during the night. Last night the mercury slipped to 32 degrees. It had gone up to 45 at noon.

Withdraws Petition To Transfer Property

Following strong objections from adjoining property owners at a public hearing in city hall Tuesday evening, W. O. Fannon withdrew his petition to have property in block 40, Fond du Lac, transferred from the light to the heavy manufacturing district. The objectors argued that the change would depreciate property values in that locality, and would detract from the new park recently acquired by the city.

Two Shiocton Residents Catch Turtles for Market

Locating and hooking turtles in shallow water in the Wolf river between Shiocton and Shawano is now the work from daylight to dark of G. A. Speaker and I. B. Waldron, both of Shiocton.

Their equipment consists of a row boat, turtle hooks, sacks to hold the turtles, and a truck to transport the day's catch from the land to a pond in the game preserve on the Speaker farm.

The turtles captured will be kept in the pond until the market improves. On receiving an order, holes will be chopped in ice covering of the pond and enough turtles will be removed from their hibernating quarters in the mud to fill the order. Each order received will be filled in the same manner until the entire stock is shipped.

Speaker has been engaged in the turtle shipping business for several years, and the past two years he has used his storing pond for his surplus turtles. Five years ago, he made a single shipment of 75 large barrels of turtles to Chicago.

This season the weight of his turtles caught runs from 15 to 35 pounds. Turtles under six pounds caught should be dropped back into the river, he said, to grow and increase in weight.

Years when he has made his largest catches, Speaker said, he could not understand how there could be any turtles in the Wolf river, its tributaries, marshes, and ponds the following years. He has found out, however, that turtles multiply so rapidly that there is practically no danger of decreasing their numbers to any serious extent.

Later this fall, Speaker and Waldron expect to hook turtles in muskrat dens in the banks of rivers, in underground channels and in mud close to the banks. Turtles are located by holes in mud and by uneven spots.

Won't Name Relief Drive Leader 'Till Recount Is Ended

Judge Fred V. Heinemann, chairman of the Appleton Welfare and Relief council, said today that he would not arrange for appointment of the chairman of a citizen's committee to conduct the drive for relief work in the city this winter. At a meeting of the council last week the members unanimously voted to again conduct a drive. Under the rules of the council, the next step in the program is for the president to appoint a chairman of the drive committee and this chairman will plan the solicitation activity. Judge Heinemann, however, still is busy in the recount of ballots cast for the Republican nomination for district attorney and he said he would take no action until the recount has been completed.

Hoover Pleased By Iowa Cheers

President and First Lady Given Warm Welcome In Native State

Des Moines —(AP)— An orphan who became president sped back to the nation's capital in his special train today, heartened he said by the welcome of Iowans to their native son, Herbert Clark Hoover.

"I don't know when I've been so heartened," the president told an overflow crowd which welcomed him to the state house plaza following his opening campaign address at the Des Moines coliseum.

Braving the brisk cold of the fall night, President and Mrs. Hoover, also a native Iowan, smiled their appreciation of the crowds which heard the president's address through amplifiers at the plaza and the shrine auditorium.

"I want to express the appreciation I have for the fine, generous welcome accorded. From the moment we set foot in our native state," Mr. Hoover said.

The state house crowd cheered as Gov. Dan Turner introduced Mr. Hoover as the next president of the United States.

Mr. Hoover joined with the audience in a friendly laugh when Secretary of State A. C. Greenwalt presented Mrs. Hoover as "the chief executive's chief executive."

Following his reception at the shrine and at the state house plaza, the president spoke briefly to Iowa newsmen at Hotel Fort Des Moines.

Men and not providences are to blame for the difficulties of the present day, Mr. Hoover said. He described as a "mystery to me" the hardships that can come in a state where every year "God grants us every favor."

"And yet," he added, "a man-made mess defies providence. Explaining that he thought his listeners had heard enough about the more serious side of the country's affairs during his formal address at the coliseum, Mr. Hoover recalled his boyhood in West Branch.

The first meeting of the group school for reserve army officers will be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the federal building with Capt. A. P. Lagorio in charge. First lessons in the various courses will be given out. There are two groups in this year, one of second lieutenants, the other of first lieutenants. Courses taken count toward promotion to the next highest grade.

DEATHS

MRS. WILLIAM PFUND
Mrs. William Pfund, 68, died at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning at her home at 203 N. State-st. Clara Wagner was born Jan. 11, 1864 at Ozaukee, and was married to William Pfund in 1891 at Hayfork. They lived for 10 years at Hayfork, moved to Calumet-co. and in 1913 moved to Appleton. Survivors are her husband; one son, Reuben, Appleton; two sisters, Miss Marian Wagner, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mrs. Amelia Wilson, Fond du Lac; and two grandchildren. Friends may call at the residence from Thursday noon until the time for the funeral at 1:45 Saturday afternoon. Services will be held at 2 o'clock at St. Paul church, with the Rev. T. J. Sauer in charge. Burial will be in Broad cemetery at Chilton.

G. L. CARLTON
Word has been received in Appleton of the death of G. L. Carlton, Milwaukee, former manager of Appleton Car Mover company, which occurred two months ago in Indianapolis, Ind. He was a member of the Lions club of Appleton and of the Masonic lodge.

Apply Plant Food When Bulbs are Put in Ground

An impression is often held that bulbs which are newly planted in the fall do not require plant food. It is true that mature bulbs have stored up food in themselves which largely supplies the energy for early spring growth, and which may be sufficient to produce a flower. But this is only part of the story.

At the time the flower is being produced a large number of roots are being formed. These roots seek for growth in the soil for plant food and water which they supply to the growing plant. If there is a deficiency of plant food in the soil, the growth of the plant is greatly hampered. The production of a vigorous, perfect flower of normal size and color requires this additional nourishment taken from the soil, without which the flower will certainly suffer, and may fail entirely.

Fully as important as flower production is the development of well matured bulbs for the following year's flowering. Bulb plants that are neglected soon become worthless.

Since bulbs start to grow so early in the spring, it is difficult to work plant food into the soil so as to get it down to the bulbs before growth starts. It is therefore advisable to mix a complete plant food thoroughly in the bottom of the trench at the rate of two pounds per 100 feet of row before planting the bulbs.

Also give a light feeding in the early spring. Sprinkle the plant for around the plants shortly after it comes through the ground.

Plan Two Courses In Girl Scout Work

Miss Meldon Everett, a member of the National Field Training staff of Girl Scouts, will be in Appleton, Oct. 10 to 15 to give two courses in Girl Scout work at Lawrence college. The troop progress course, which will be conducted from 3:45 to 5:45 in the afternoons, will cover advanced scout work, and the general course from 7 to 9 in the evening will be on beginning work.

Miss Everett, a graduate of the University of Michigan, had wide and varied camping experience before joining the Girl Scout organization. She became a member of the national staff in 1930.

Anyone interested in this work is invited to join either of the two classes. Registration must be made by Saturday with Miss Dorothy Calnin, director at the Woman's club.

Big Burden of Campaign Laid Upon Hoover

Task Is to Hold Republican, Rather Than Win Democratic, Votes

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
New York—Can words change the tide of resentment against economic conditions?

The Republican leaders are hopeful that President Hoover's speech in Iowa last evening will win back those who are straying from the party. The Democrats insist that nothing can interrupt the sweep they are bound to make.

The Literary Digest figures show that out of the first 200,000 ballots gathered, about 120,000 were Republicans and that out of these 40,000 were turning to Franklin D. Roosevelt. Out of the Democratic votes of four years ago a relatively small number is shifting to Hoover to offset it.

This means that the Republican job in the next few weeks is to win Republican votes. It is different from the task of four years ago, when Governor Smith was trying to convert Republicans into Democrats. He converted many but not enough. Mr. Hoover's effort is to hold as many of those who voted for him four years ago as he can, and while he can afford to lose much of the majority of the last campaign he cannot afford to see his party strength cut down in the percentages indicated by the Literary Digest.

The Republican chieftains admit that the prejudice against the administration on economic grounds is extensive, but they do not think it is so deep-seated that it cannot be overcome. They argue that many people have cast their ballots or expressed their preference on the basis of what has happened to date and that the consideration given to issues has been superficial. The argument is that Mr. Hoover will transfer attention to more fundamental questions and appeal to the conservatism of his party.

It is no exaggeration to say that, hopeful as the Republicans are, they are privately confident. They do not know just how strong their campaign of the next few weeks is going to be in a vote-getting sense. Much reliance is placed on the impression produced by the president's address in Iowa. If it is as favorably received as the speech of acceptance, they will be heartened considerably. The Republican campaign still depends on one man—the nominee himself.

Can Europe Come Back?

This is the sixteenth of a series of articles on the possibilities of economic recovery in Europe written by H. R. Knickerbocker, noted newspaper writer and investigator, who visited all the countries of Europe in the preparation of the series. The seventeenth article will appear on Thursday.

the bargain as it stands today. The figures also show what an extraordinarily small percentage the American debt payments would make of the total French budget and of the total French expenditures on her army and navy.

Capacity to Pay Vital

But none of these figures touches on the question that Washington in the past has made the prime criterion for the treatment of a debt, namely, the capacity of the debtor to pay. If French capacity to pay is considered solely in the light of her financial and commercial relations with America, two factors are dominant. One is the Franco-American trade balance; the other is the expenditure of American tourists in France.

From 1926 to 1931 inclusive, that is, over the period of actual debt payment, France imported from America more than America imported from France, goods valued at $1,110,000,000.

So that, plus her payment of $200,000,000 on the debt, France sent America in these six years a total of $1,310,000,000. And if to this is added for the account of French interest and amortization on private loans from America during the period 1926-1931 $200,000,000, the grand total of French payments to U. S. A. in the six years in question would be $1,510,000,000.

But in those six years approximately 1,200,000 American tourists visited France and spent, according to the best estimates available, not less than $1,630,000,000.

So that France had a net balance in her favor of $120,000,000. On the face of these figures it would appear obvious that American tourists have supplied France with more than enough dollars to meet the debt to America.

These facts considered by themselves offer very slender support to any French argument of inability to pay. But the facts just cited represent merely the French-American balance and have been isolated from the total French balance of payments. This total balance of payments, as it appears today and as it promises to appear in the future, is the real criterion not only for the French attitude toward the debt to America, but for the economic future of this country as a whole.

Balance Shifts

Yesterday the French balance of payments was highly favorable, gold flooded the Bank of France and the franc was the strongest great currency in Europe. Today the French balance of payments has become unfavorable. The best available evidence points to the prospect that tomorrow the French may be paying out gold as fast as they took it in during the gilded days of 1927-31. When gold flows out the currency grows thin, and far-sighted Frenchmen today are wondering what the future has in store for the franc.

The first element in this prospect is the fact that the French gold influx has passed its maximum. The French supply of gold plus foreign currency convertible into gold tripled in the year of stabilization 1927, going from $833,000,000 to $2,587,000,000 in 1928 and thenceforward it continued to climb to $2,707,000,000 in 1929, $3,190,000,000 in 1930 until it reached the record of $3,599,000,000 at the end of 1931. It hovered around this point for the first few months of 1932, then began to fall off until by mid-summer it had declined $104,000,000 to $3,495,000,000. By this time all but about $200,000,000 of the foreign currency held by the Bank of France had been converted into gold.

Source Important

The diminution so far this year, it is true, has been only 3 per cent. French gold stock is its source. Its source was the French capital that fled abroad during the inflation. It took the five years from 1927 to 1932 to bring it back in gold, but in the opinion of every French and foreign financial observer, virtually every centime of French capital is now back in the country. It is estimated that ten million individual French citizens brought their money back to France from 1926 to 1932.

Furthermore, France has virtually ceased to be a creditor nation. Roughly stated, she has called all her loans, and all she has abroad are a few political credits the majority of which are frozen. In other words, if one leaves out of account movements of gold based upon purely psychological motives, there is no economic source for more gold to come into France.

This is quite different from the American gold position. United States lenders, according to the United States Department of Commerce, still have abroad around $15,000,000,000 of private investments, so that, leaving war debts out of account, the annual sum of interest, dividends and amortization payments owed to America from abroad is at least $900,000,000. The problem of receiving this payment has its own difficulties. The French problem today is in another category.

Control at Issue

Put in the simplest terms it is: How can France, now that she has repatriated her whole capital, prevent an outflow of gold that may at first seem desirable, but may become uncontrollable and therefore dangerous to the currency? The current outflow of 3 per cent within a few months is certainly not alarming. But the balance of French revenues presents another picture. In 1928 France had a net credit on her international movement of goods, services, interest and dividends of $390,000,000, according to the calculation of Pierre Meyniel. This authority's figures show that in 1929 the credit had declined to $317,000,000; in 1930 to $208,000,000, and in 1931 it changed to a debit of $120,000,000. This 1931 debit could be covered by gold and still leave the net influx of about $400,000,000 of gold and foreign currency during the year, because the gross influx of gold and foreign currency amounted during the year to about $520,000,000.

But what will the debit on account of goods, services, interest and dividends be in 1932? This can only be estimated, but certain definite trends are clearly evident. France's balance of revenues has changed or is changing rapidly on four items: reparations from Germany, receipts from tourists, the foreign trade balance and receipts from the few remaining French loans to abroad.

On reparations France booked in 1931 about $104,000,000 to her account up until the Hoover moratorium. This sum will fall out in 1932 and the following years.

Tourist Receipts Drop

On tourist receipts France booked in 1931, according to the most conservative figures available, gathered from the French Tourist Office, and accepted by M. Meyniel as reasonably accurate, about $240,000,000, as compared with $340,000,000 in 1930 and the maximum of $400,000,000 in 1929. Thirty per cent is the net diminution estimated by the best authorities for tourist receipts in 1932 as compared with 1931. This would bring the receipts for this year down to $160,000,000 or $80,000,000 less than in 1931.

In her foreign trade policy France, by raising tariffs, and imposing quotas, has desperately attempted to reduce her passive trade balance. She has succeeded in raising a host of retaliatory quotas against her own exports, which have sunk by 43 per cent in the first seven months of 1932 as compared with the same period in 1931, while her imports sank by only 35 per cent. Nevertheless the absolute reduction of imports was so large that she has reduced the passivity of her trade balance by about $100,000,000 so far this year.

On the other hand, conservative estimates of the amount France will lose from frozen foreign credits in 1932 run to around $20,000,000.

Thus the balance of international revenues and expenditures on goods, services, interest and dividends for 1932, as compared with 1931, promises to show changes of plus $100,000,000 on tourist receipts, and another of perhaps $20,000,000 on returns from foreign credits, or a net minus of the whole account of about $140,000,000. This added to the 1931 deficit of $120,000,000 would give a total deficit for 1932 of $224,000,000.

How to Meet Deficit?

How can this deficit be met? If it is true that all the French capital abroad has been repatriated, and that no more gold influx from French sources can be expected, the deficit can only be met by a net outward payment of gold or foreign currency. The Bank of France in August, 1932, still had left around $200,000,000 of foreign currency. Even if this is applied to the deficit on revenue account, the conclusion is that by the end of the year, gold must begin to flow out and that in 1933 the flow will become progressively larger.

Other factors remaining the same and allowing for no increase in the balance of payments deficit, France, according to this calculation, would lose at least $250,000,000 of gold in 1933. At this rate it would take her four years to get back to her 1928 level, but other factors never remain the same. The factor of public confidence, is the most sensitive to change, and what sober observers of this trend in French finance today are afraid of is the effect upon the French and the world psychology of the economically determined flow of gold away from the French vaults.

The loss of gold by France through the purely economic factors here described could be of general benefit, relieving the Bank of France of its plethora, and redistributing the gold to countries where it could best be used for stabilization of their currencies. But a significant part of the capital in France, indeterminate in amount, but likely to total not less than $500,000,000, belongs to foreigners. It is panic money that fled to the franc, drawn here by the current of inflowing gold. Panic money follows the flow, and when to an economically determined outflow of gold is added the flow determined by psychology, the prospect is incalculable.

Explains Attitude

It is a prospect that helps to explain the French insistence that they will pay not one centime more to America than Germany pays to France. It is a prospect that helps explain the French insistence that the Bank of France is no charitable institution. Laissez faire is the essence of French economic policy. If Central Europe wants to restabilize its currencies, let them first drop and then ask the Bank of France for help. This was the reply I received from a French authority when I asked whether France would contribute to a stabilization loan. But laissez faire works both ways.

"France," said one of the most acute financial observers in Europe to me, "will be borrowing money from Germany in a few years." "What do you mean?"

"Well, she has been doing so ever since the war, hasn't she?" French "loans" from Germany, called "reparations," have amounted since 1932 alone, according to the estimate of France's own Reparations Commissions, to not less than $1,500,000,000, or an average of $150,000,000 yearly.

Today this source of revenue is sealed. The conversion of more than $2,000,000,000 of French capital into gold between 1928 and 1932 deprived Frenchmen of an income of at least $120,000,000 a year. French prices, maintained today by the pressure of her high tariff, and of her gold are the highest in Europe.

Her tourist receipts are being progressively decimated. Her exports are declining faster than those of most other countries. Her unemployment is still less than 1,000,000 but indications point to an increase. Her budget shows a widening deficit, and the Government that in 1927 had cut its whole debt by four-fifths through inflating the currency today has a public debt of around $10,000,000,000 or more than half that of the United States. At least one in every three French citizens collects a pension of one kind or another.

The outflow of French money from 1922 to 1927 helped Britain put sterling on gold. The inflow of French money from 1927 to 1931 helped push sterling off gold. The prospective outflow of French money from 1932 on may help put sterling back on gold.

The vaults of the Bank of France are the strongest in the world. But economic laws are stronger.

MR. BLAINE QUILTS

True to form to the last, Mr. Blaine's declaration to run independently contains a bitter arraignment of the Hoover administration, distorted by misstatement as usual, and the customary and pitiful picture of himself, the threadbare champion of the downtrodden, temporarily rendered hors de combat by those sullen and sinister influences, always directed by the hand of Beelzebub that are now as common in political parlance as the rumble of stage thunder and the flashing of stage lightning.

Mr. Blaine is not a good diagnostician of his own ailment. No one is. He was defeated by a small majority and yet it was a crushing defeat.

A man who has been constantly in the public eye for 20 years, supporting a platform that has been uniformly popular in this state, discloses something vitally wrong with himself when an entirely unknown quantity like Mr. Chapple who smells nothing but the odors of the Kremlin and sees only the tall spires—what there are left of them,—of Moscow everywhere, can win.

Mr. Blaine is not a candidate because he knows his goose is cooked, the people finally have found his measure. He called himself a Progressive but he was not a liberal. He was just loose.

When he came back to the sticks from Washington he confidently expected to sweep Wisconsin with the slogan, "Pay the bonus in cash," but after a few sobbing references to this subject and the cold glint he saw in his listeners' eyes he abandoned it.

His misstatements, as wild as any nightmare, concerning the really excellent things in the Hoover program, turned as a boomerang upon him and thoroughly discredited his purposes when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation published its report showing that something like 75 per cent of the funds it was loaning went into the small communities, to those whom politicians like to speak of, with trembling lip, as forgotten.

It is hardly fair to say that Mr. Chapple was nominated. It is more accurate to declare that Mr. Blaine was rejected.

The Blaine-Brookhart type, heavy in denunciation, quick to impugn every adversary's honesty or motives, always noisy and vociferous, are a dead weight around the neck of any nation which is having a difficult time enough without carrying such a handicap.

The Democratic party had to rid itself of Tom-Tom Hefflin. His blatherskite disgraced it in the eyes of the nation. The Progressives will come back better and stronger without the Blaine-Brookhart combination. There is plenty of talent and capacity in their ranks and that is what must be chosen for the important positions of leadership.

INSULLISM

Governor Roosevelt's discussion of "Insullism" or the necessity of federal regulation of holding companies through the means of which many operating companies throughout the nation are controlled, was well received because of the clear necessity of a pronounced program in the future to prevent the wholesale losses that naturally ensued from the reckless policy of pyramiding.

Whether federal regulation is the remedy does not necessarily follow, for regulation by the national government must only be adopted as a last resort and when it is clear beyond reasonable controversy that no other means will secure the desired results.

"Insullism" may be just a case of an old man who became drunk on power and had hallucinations of himself atop a colossal throne only to awaken and find himself falling into a sheer and black abyss; or it may be, and without respect to Mr. Insull himself, the natural result when the desire for wealth, power and prestige becomes a mania and all the finer things and instincts of life are crushed or destroyed to make possible the clasp of something less than a bubble.

If possible the Insulls should be compelled to return to this country for examination, not necessarily to drag them at horse's heels through a jeering multitude, but to expose all the many and various steps, complicated and bewildering as they are, that culminated finally in a broken and impotent conclusion, in order that public opinion may develop into such a chorus as will force necessary action and prevent a repetition of this sorry debacle.

In almost all cases state laws, carefully drawn and honestly enforced, supported only by a federal statute to cover cases where transactions involve crossing state borders, will suffice. We have had delegates from various states sometimes meet and agree upon uniform measures to be enacted in each state where it is advisable to have precisely the same rules. We have a standard fire insurance policy passed in precisely the same form in some 30 states, also a Uniform Negotiable Instruments law so that business and commercial interests, having become familiar with their rights in one state, may rely upon the same rules elsewhere. While absolute uniformity may not be essential in the sale of securities it would generally tend to avoid confusion.

We hope the Insull matter, like the Ivar Krueger collapse, although of a different hue, holds public attention for a long time to come.

We can never expect to cure the cause of our woes by forgetting them too quickly.

THE RELIEF CAMPAIGN

Appleton people, however hard they have been hit by the depression, again will have a reminder this fall that they still have an obligation to their even more unfortunate neighbors. Appleton Welfare council has voted unanimously to conduct a campaign for funds for relief work the coming winter and is expecting every Appleton resident to do his share.

The Welfare council was well advised in this decision. It represents not only the judgment of the local organization but the studied opinion of national leaders who have emphatically stated that this is no time for private relief organizations to lay down on the job and leave the entire task of feeding and clothing the jobless and the needy to state or municipal agencies.

There are in Appleton more than a few persons for whom the depression up to now has been little more than an academic matter about which they talk a great deal but which they have not experienced themselves. Such small income reductions as they have been forced to accept have been more than balanced by the decrease in their living costs so that their relative position today is as good as it was two and three years ago. And there are in Appleton even at this time a considerable number of people whose incomes have not been decreased at all and for whom the depression has been a means of making greater savings.

It should not be an extremely difficult task to ferret out the names of these persons and to concentrate attention on them. There is no doubt that a new source of income must be tapped this year by private relief organizations and the best prospect for success will be found in this class.

BRITISH CABINET CHANGES

The resolution of one Labor and two Liberal members of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet was not unexpected.

The present National government was formed a year ago to meet a financial crisis and consisted of a coalition of the Conservative and Liberal parties with a small section of the Labor party that follows Ramsay MacDonald.

England has for long been a staunch advocate of free trade, this policy being one of the cardinal traditions of the Liberal party. Only within the past few years has there been a marked reaction in favor of protective tariffs, which has added greatly to Conservative strength.

When the present government was formed it was generally understood that a higher tariff policy might be adopted and the Liberals entered the new cabinet reserving the right to oppose the government's program on that subject.

Last spring these free traders in the cabinet threatened to resign but were held in line because Britain's economic and financial crisis had not then passed.

Now that the crisis is apparently over mainly because of the successful conversion of the two billion pound war loan, Liberal leaders are of the opinion that the time has come to rebuild their demoralized party for the purpose of fighting the next election on this issue of free trade against protection. Their present action received additional impetus as a result of the higher and more permanent tariff schedules recently set up at the Ottawa conference and which have aroused much opposition in the mother country.

For the present there appears to be little likelihood of a cabinet crash in that Prime Minister MacDonald is in complete accord with the Conservative leader, Stanley Baldwin.

The situation does, however, make it more difficult for Mr. MacDonald to keep up the impression that his is still a non-partisan government as originally intended, which may also make it more awkward for the former Laborite Prime Minister to remain at the head of it in case of any attempted reorganization on strictly partisan lines.

MIDDLE AGE AND YOUTH

"Oh!" said the middle-aged chap, "I am told 'This thinking not living that makes a man old. And grownups of fifty and sixty can be As sprightly and nimble as twenty and three. If only the heart had the courage to go Where timid old reason keeps counseling 'no.'"

"I'm young as the youngest. My years I forget I'd dance and I'd prance with the light-hearted set.

But the rollicking blades look with pity on me And act as though kind 'th's their duty to be. A chasm divides us! Whenever I'm nigh I'm granted respect which themselves they deny.

I fancy that still I can share in their fun. I refuse to admit that my boyhood is done; But the lads of today in a manner polite Arise from their seats when I venture in sight. And with something of sorrow and anguish I They all want to help when I put on my coat.

"They say that a man is as old as he feels, And I laugh and I dance and enjoy all my meals.

That I've journeyed past fifty means nothing to me. It's out with the young folks I'm eager to be. And I could carry on just as brave and as bold. But the youngsters won't let me forget that I'm old."

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

On and after Monday, Oct. 9, 1907 shaves to all patrons of Appleton barber shops was to be fifteen cents, this increase being the result of the action of the executive committee which held a final meeting the previous evening in the interests of the Appleton Barber's union.

The marriage of Miss Norma Wolman, daughter of Mrs. Mary Wolman, 637 Durkess-st., to Albert W. Zuelke took place the previous day at noon at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. T. Rouse.

Miss Melba Graef, 687 Drew-st., entertained the previous evening in honor of Miss Julia Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Meyer, whose marriage to Carl G. Seeger was to take place Oct. 15.

Miss Evelyn Buerch who had been visiting with relatives at Green Bay had returned to her home in Appleton.

Marion Trentlage returned the previous evening from Edon where he had been spending a week on his farm.

Marriage licenses had been issued to Tena Bohm and William McGehee, both of Appleton; Hayes Wilmot and Hulda Mothes, both of Appleton.

A CAMPAIGN BOOK SOLD AT RETAIL.

It is a custom, established by long use, for political parties engaged in a Presidential campaign to issue a text-book, setting forth the party platform, the party record, arguments why the ticket should be supported, statistics, and whatever else the National committee may deem valuable. The text-book is designed for the use and instruction of party speakers, the party press, and whoever may be interested. It is not regarded as permanent literature and is seldom cherished on the open shelves of libraries.

The Republican party has issued its text-book for the current campaign. The 1928 document was a bulky work of 424 pages. As deficits a period of business depression and lower campaign contributions, the present volume is reduced to 288 pages. And while in former years the book was given free to applicants, the 1932 edition costs 25 cents.

Now what do you know about that?—Detroit news.

FORMALDEHYDE FOR OSMID-ROSIS

Osmidrosis is not a new name, but an old name for bromidrosis. What, you don't even know what bromidrosis means? Tohki! Tohki! Well, keep your eye on the cozy corner magazine—they'll get around to it some of these days. Of course, they won't call it osmidrosis, is nor even bromidrosis. They'll probably popularize some silly term as F. F. for it—meaning fetid perspiration.

All sweat has an odor. The normal odor is imparted to the sweat mainly by the fatty acids in the sebum or skin oil which is mixed with the sweat in the common ducts of the sweat and sebaceous glands. This normal odor is sourish. When the sweat has a foul odor, that may be due to certain foods or medicines the individual has taken, but is usually due to decomposition of the mingled sweat and sebum retained in the clothing or upon poorly ventilated surfaces of the skin. The truth of this is shown by the prompt correction of the affected skin surface to air and sun or by the local application of chemical disinfectants.

Going barefoot is by all odds the best preventative and corrective of foul sweating of the feet. Even if sunlight is not available, just going barefoot is always beneficial to the feet provided, I suppose I must not forget to warn you avoid places where ringworm or epidermophytosis is prevalent, such as public baths, gymnasiums and swimming pools, and provided you do not live in a community where the ground is polluted with hookworm.

Formaldehyde is powerful, not only as a germicide and disinfectant, but as an irritant and caustic. But if you are not a child it is the most excellent remedy for fetid sweating of feet or hands. For the correction of osmidrosis of other parts of the skin it is not so good.

Formaldehyde comes in the standard solution of the gas in water, called Liquor Formaldehydi. This is official in both the United States and the British pharmacopoeias. It is a 37 per cent solution of the pungent gas in water.

Ford moderate cases of fetid sweating of the feet it is sufficient to give the shoes and stockings a formaldehyde bath once a month. One ounce of the standard Formaldehydi with enough water added to fill up a half pint bottle.

Pour an ounce or two of this into each shoe and swish it about to wet the whole lining, then drain it out into the next shoe, and set all the shoes so treated in the air and if possible in the sun to dry out for 24 hours or more before you wear them again. Or a similar bath may be made on the feet of old stockings, which should then hang out to dry in like manner.

For more pronounced cases, mix one ounce of standard Liquor Formaldehydi with three ounces of water in a four ounce vial. By means of a small sponge or brush or wisp of cotton on the end of a stick, paint some of this over the soles and between the toes. Let it dry in the air. This application may be repeated each alternate day for three or four times, provided the skin does not become too greatly irritated.

For the prevention of excessive sweating (whether fetid or not) of the hands this formula has proved satisfactory:

Liquor Formaldehydi . . . 1 dram
Menthol 2 grains
Lanolin 6 grams
Petatum, enough to make one ounce.

Dispense in collapsible tube. Apply to palms and palmar surfaces of fingers a pea-size portion each night for a week, from time to time as needed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Alcohol In Iodin

Is there any danger in the use of tincture of iodine that there would be enough wood alcohol to do real harm? (A. P.)
Answer.—There is no wood alcohol in tincture of iodine. Only grain alcohol is used. Not enough of that in any dose of iodine to have any appreciable alcoholic effect. The same holds true for the use of aro-matie spirits of ammonia as an emergency stimulant.

One Lung
What is pleurisy? Is it serious when it affects a person for several years? I have been told that I have pleurisy. How does it affect me? (T. A. D.)

Answer.—Inflammation of covering of lungs or lining of chest cavity. It is serious in any case. We have no symptoms today.

Plaster Cast
In what manner is a plaster cast put on the body and must the patient lie perfectly still all the time? (K. R.)

Answer.—The skin to be covered is cleansed and perhaps greased and covered first with padding of sheet wadding or perhaps a stockinette garment. The plaster is applied partly by means of washed muslin bandages saturated with plaster cream, and partly by means of blobs of thick mixed plaster to give the necessary bulk and strength. The patient must keep reasonably still, but generally the patient can go on breathing, buzzing the doctor or flitting with the nurse.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE animals that Duncy had set free all seemed to feel real glad. They started making funny noises, as they raced around.

"Oh, my! Oh, my! What have I done?" cried Duncy. "Still, it's lots of fun. I hope the animals don't hide where they can't be found."

The zoo man will be mad at me. When he wakes up he'll plainly see that one small cage is empty and, of course, I'll get the blame.

"I'll wake the Tynmites and then they'll help me catch the beasts again. I don't think there's much danger, 'cause the little beasts look tame."

He then ran to the Tynies and began to poke them with his hand. "Wake up! Wake up!" he shouted. "Funny beasts are running wild. Let them run out of their cage. The zoo man will fly in a rage."

"Well, goodness sakes," snapped Scout, "you're a most annoying child."

The zoo man had heard what they said. He jumped and shouted. "Go ahead and capture all the animals. Then I will not be mad. Back in the cage put every one. Right after them you'd better run. If even one should get away, for Duncy 'twill be sad."

So off the Tynies ran, and they found it was work, rather than play. The animals dashed here and there and one climbed up a tree.

Wee Windy went right after it and he was not afraid, one bit. He grabbed the little fellow, holding tight as tight could be.

Then Scout swung a little rope and loudly shouted, "Gee, I hope that I can do some lassoing. This trick to me is play."

He flung the rope out in the air. It very quickly landed where a small beast was. The beast was caught. It couldn't get away.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—On one of those hectic days during the last session of congress when the cry of "Balance the budget!" was on every tongue, a man of medium height, with thinning gray hair and clear blue eyes advanced into the well of the house.

He began to speak rapidly because of his intense interest in what he was saying. Those 400 or so men on the floor and persons in the packed galleries listened in silence.

"I have burned every bridge behind me," he said. "No matter what the personal consequences may be to me, I am going to advocate the levying of sufficient taxes to balance the budget. . . . It means nothing to the United States whether I remain in congress. . . . It means much to the United States government that its honor, its credit, and its security be maintained at par. . . ."

His Biggest Task

That might well have been the valedictory speech of Charlie Crisp of Georgia, for 20 years a member of the house. He leaves "the hill" after March 4, defeated in an attempt to win a seat in the senate.

Crisp made that declaration in his capacity as acting chairman of the ways and means committee. What he often said was the biggest burden of his career fell on his shoulders early in the session when Collier of Mississippi, chairman of this committee, collapsed from overwork.

That turn of fate may have been the thing which helped retire Charlie Crisp to private life.

As acting chairman it fell to him to provide the leadership for whipping into shape the big new revenue bill for boosting the federal income. It was perhaps the most difficult problem any committee of congress ever has had to deal with.

Of course, as the ranking member of the committee he would have borne much of the responsibility anyway, but the fact that he was the chairman and out in front all of the time made him a special object of attacks.

Entered House At 26

His acts as chairman came under fire in the Georgia campaign. Advocacy of the sales tax, placing the tax on electric power on the consumer rather than the producer were charged to him, and he was painted as one who favored the special interests.

Crisp's departure removes one of the best known members of congress. Now 61, when he first sat in the house he was 26.

When the League of Nations Council convened at Geneva President de Valera of the Irish Free State presided, and next to him sat Secretary General Drummond and Sir John Simon of England. It has not been explained how war was averted.

The fellow who claims he carried the "Mooney suitcase" to San Francisco's preparedness parade in 1916 explains he didn't tell police because his parents would have scolded him for watching a parade on the Sabbath. Which, if true, would make it all right with Mooney and Billings, after 16 years in prison.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—There has been no depression in the society marriage market, Marie Courdet Brenning insists.

She speaks with some authority. During the past two and a half years, in business for herself, she has attended to the details of more than 550 marriages, many of them involving families of high prominence. For a couple of years before that she did the same work for two Fifth avenue "class" stores.

In the past year, her best, she directed the spending of all money for a $20,000 wedding. This was her most expensive one.

Miss Brenning's business is to shop for the bride's trousseau, the ceremonial decorations, all incidentals and even have the church and the preacher in readiness. She will go further; supervise the clothing of the ushers, advise the groom and buy the honeymoon tickets.

One of her clients married a man who lives in California. Miss Brenning personally picked out a nice looking freight car to take all the wedding presents to the coast.

She profits on commissions from the shops. The people who employ her services pay her nothing.

Miss Brenning was born to the manner of society. Six years ago she bought herself in financial straits. She went to work as an $18 a week sales girl. Before long she originated the bridal department for her store.

Her present activities are carried on in a swanky gray and green terrace establishment on Fifty-seventh street. Helen Anderson, a charming New England girl, is her assistant.

But not all of Miss Brenning's clients are of society, and not all of her weddings run into the thousands of dollars. "She gives careful attention to the girl who has only a couple of hundred dollars behind her, and has found that this, too, can prove profitable."

Cinderella Story

A dreamy-eyed little stenographer booted into the office, only to be awed at what she discovered. The girl began to weep with humiliation; said she had only $250 to spend on her trousseau and was afraid she had come to the wrong place.

Miss Brenning reassured her, and got together the very neatest outfit possible for the money. The steno was profuse in her gratitude, went her way with her man, and Miss Brenning thought nothing more about it.

Not long thereafter Miss Brenning had a call from a down-town business man. He said her services had been described to him in such glowing terms that he wanted her to handle his daughter's wedding.

The poor little girl was the very rich man's stenographer, as the story book would put it. The $250 client's enthusiasm was responsible for Miss Brenning getting commissions on an $11,000 expenditure.

Offers Report On Survey of Valley Sewage

Cost of Disposal System Would Range From 1 to 2 Million

The various factors that enter into a survey of a river to determine what steps are necessary to clear it of sewage pollution were explained and a description of the report on the survey of the Fox river a year ago was presented by Samuel A. Greeley, of Pearce, Greeley and Hanson, hydraulic and sanitary engineering firm from Chicago, at the meeting of the Rotary club at Hotel Northern yesterday noon. The Rotary clubs of Neenah, Menasha and Kaukauna were guests.

Mayors John W. Goodland, Jr., Appleton, B. W. Fargo, Kaukauna, N. G. Remmel, Menasha, village presidents, Joseph Doerfler, Kimberly, Anton Jansen, Little Chute, and Malachai Ryan, Combined Locks, L. M. Schindler, Appleton city engineer, and A. E. McMahon, Menasha city engineer and chairman of the special engineer's committee on the survey, also were present.

The Chicago firm was engaged about a year ago through the efforts of the Fox River Valley Municipalities league, which was considering the organization of a sewage disposal district to include all of the towns, cities and villages between Neenah and Kaukauna. The engineers were asked to estimate the cost of a disposal plant to serve the entire district; the cost of establishing two plants, one at Neenah and the other at Kaukauna; and also the cost of a three-plant system, with plants at Neenah, Kaukauna and one below Appleton.

Engineering Is First
Mr. Greeley pointed out that three factors entered the preliminary plans for a sewage district. These are the engineering, social and financial elements. Engineering, he said, could be considered one of the most important because it came first and because this element determined the feasibility of purifying the river and also what corrective steps would be necessary.

"It is often obvious even to the untrained layman that a stream is polluted because the sewage can sometimes be seen and smelled," Mr. Greeley explained. "However, it takes scientific and careful study to determine how much the river or stream is polluted and more careful investigation to determine just what corrective steps would be necessary to alleviate the condition."

Through various investigations, international, national and local, certain standards for the purity of the water in rivers have been set up. Mr. Greeley declared. The pollution loads, which can be handled by natural flow, are determined, and then it is possible to discover just how much of a corrective step is necessary to make the water pure.

Several factors enter into the pollution of a stream. Mr. Greeley said, as he explained the various steps which must be taken before an accurate determination of the condition of the water is reached. Among these factors are the extent of the population in the district, the amount and type of sewage that results from this source, and the type and amount of sewage that results from industrial plants.

A determination of the amount and type of sewage resulting from residents was more easily arrived at than it was when the work started in determining the amount and type of sewage resulting from industry in the Fox river valley, he said.

It was necessary to make an individual study at each plant because of the complex industrial activity found in the valley. This was finally determined.
Low Summer Flow
Then followed a study of the water in the river when it was determined that the river has a large natural drop between Neenah and Kaukauna and that, as is most always usual, there was a minimum flow during the summer. The flow of the water fluctuated from a minimum of 1,300 cubic feet per second at the low season to a minimum of 5,000 cubic feet and sometimes even more. A comparative study of other rivers then was made to determine the natural recuperative power of the river.

Mr. Greeley explained that the minimum requirement of oxygen in the water was between two and three parts to a million parts of water. The normal amount of oxygen is about eight parts to a million water. During the summer months there were some places in the river where the water was found to be entirely depleted of oxygen. A reduced flow of water, often resulting in quiet places in the river where there is no natural combination of water and oxygen, brought about this condition and it immediately showed the need for a corrective step.

Consider Future Growth
In reaching the corrective step needed in the valley, Mr. Greeley pointed out, it was necessary to consider the future growth of population so that both a disposal plant and an intercepting sewer system would be large enough to serve the future. Since it is easier to enlarge a plant than an intercepting sewer system, the population figure was used in estimating the size of the intercepting system than in estimating the capacity of the plant. The present population of 56,000 was boosted to 128,000 in making the plans for the intercepting sewers and was boosted to only 70,000 in making the plans for the plant.

Plans for the disposal of sewage can be made to operate to the point where they can remove 100 per cent of the sewage but so efficient and costly a plant would not be necessary in this valley. Mr. Greeley explained, because the removal of from 30 to 40 per cent of the sewage would result in boosting the oxygen content of the water in the Fox river to a point where it was considered pure.

Screening Comes First
Sewage disposal is conducted by screening, tank sedimentation and finally to reach 100 per cent, either by filtration or aeration. The first step, screening and tank sedimentation, will remove about one third of the total load and this low cost and simple plan would be sufficient to correct the situation in the Fox river valley, he said. He then told of a sewage district among the suburbs of Chicago, where part of the sewage, which is dumped far out in the lake is treated only with the first step, while the balance, which is dumped into the north branch of the Chicago river is treated with both steps, using filtration in the second system.

Mr. Greeley declared that the range of cost of the three systems proposed in the firm's report averaged from $1,250,000 for the three-plant system to $1,800,000 for the single plant proposal. He explained that the necessity of building long intercepting sewers between the various municipalities to be served resulted in the higher cost of the single unit system.

He urged that when the valley prepare to adopt some sewage disposal system that it act as a district so that the problem would be developed in a balanced matter. He said balance was necessary because of the relationship between the various municipalities and the river.

Put Pressure on Sales Campaigns, Babson Suggests

Now Is Time to Speed Up Advertising, Expert Believes

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Park, Mass. — The time has come to put full pressure on sales and advertising. I believe a nation-wide drive to speed up selling activity would do more than anything else to hasten business recovery and put men back to work. On the downward swing from 1929 to 1932 the most important man in every business was the financial controller. His functions then were rightly to cut expenses to meet conditions. I predict that from 1932 forward the key men in every business will be the sales and advertising executives. The thing that is holding back business now is the hoarding of orders. It is up to the sales departments to pry these orders loose. The time is ripe; sentiment has improved; some businesses are definitely better; prices are moving upward. Selling and advertising efforts now will bring better results than they have for the past two years.

Aggressive Sales Policy
This depression has been a great leveller of men and of business. No longer does one concern or one industry have a great head-start on another. They will all start on a scratch. Hence, it is not safe to rely on former dominance in the field and relax selling efforts, believing that the tide will carry your business up again. New, young and enterprising business and industries are bidding for that large share of the consumer's dollar which formerly went to older industries. For example, it would be very unwise for the automobile or radio industries to slacken advertising and sales efforts now, when faced with such competition as the oil burner, the electric refrigerator, and other new industries.

In recovery after every great depression a new set of industries emerges which take the lion's share of business. This is largely because the old industries are so sure of themselves that they let up on their advertising and selling programs. My counsel to all of the old established industries is to heed the lessons of history and make sure of their competitive position by forceful advertising and selling efforts now. At the same time, new products of greater appeal to the consuming public. By generating sales activity at this time and getting factories started to fill orders, payrolls and purchasing power will gradually be restored, which in turn will build a growing public demand.

Where Business Improves
No section of the country should be neglected in the stimulating sales campaigns today. However, it is well to focus greatest sales energy on those sections and cities where business has begun to show definite improvement. Cotton and woolen textiles, shoe, rayon, and silk centers are showing marked gains. New England is one of the best sales territories now. The South has been greatly helped by the rise in cotton prices and offers a much improved territory. Parts of the West are feeling better owing to good crops and improvement in prices of some farm products. An analysis of check transactions, collections, wholesale trade, and other factors shows the following states where improvement is most marked: Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Arizona, Missouri, and North Dakota.

Gains in general business ranging from 1 per cent to 11 per cent are shown in the following cities for August over July: Augusta, Georgia; Austin, Baltimore; Chicago; Dallas; Decatur; Denver; Duluth; El Paso; Macon, Georgia; Atlanta; Memphis; Minneapolis; Montgomery; New Bedford; New Orleans; New York; Providence; San Antonio; Toledo; and Tulsa. Most other cities are now showing the advance. The strongest help to any sales campaign is the real prospect of higher prices for the commodity sold. Hence, sales efforts should bring best returns in those industries where shortages have developed, and prices have moved forward. Among them are: cotton textiles including gray goods, cotton quilts, cotton yarns, print cloth, silk cloth, woolen cloth, and woolen blankets; and in canned goods, lard, brass goods, fertilizer, and others. This is but a partial list of industries where noticeable price strengthening has occurred. Salesmen should study commodity prices just as they study sales territories.

Service Opportunity
The biggest job before America today is a selling job. Consumption by those who can afford to buy must be increased. The desire to purchase must be re-created. Only when they receive more orders can employers hire additional men. To restore the purchasing power of the millions of unemployed is the great responsibility and the great opportunity of sales and advertising men of the nation. Now is their chance to do this country a great service. The salesmen and advertising men of the United States are the group best fitted to supply Faith, Courage, and Desire, which is the basis of demand and hence of prosperity.

Business as estimated by the Babsonchart is now 22 per cent below a year ago and 42 per cent below normal.

Opening of University Brings Social Activity

BY DOROTHEA J. LEWIS
Post-Crescent Washington Society Editor

Washington — The opening of American university, which has several Badgers on its faculty, and the visit of Mrs. Zora Hudeloff of Madison have presented occasions for numerous informal and pleasant festivities for Wisconsin people in Washington.
Mrs. Peter M. Anderson, of Madison, and Augusta, entertained at luncheon Monday for Mrs. Hudeloff, who is her sister. Tuesday Mrs. F. S. Holbrook of Chevy Chase entertained at luncheon and bridge for Mrs. Hudeloff, Friday Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Hudeloff went to Baltimore, where Mrs. F. L. Tabor gave a luncheon, an afternoon bridge, and a dinner in Mrs. Hudeloff's honor. Saturday Mrs. William Kittle of Madison gave a luncheon for Mrs. Hudeloff. Mrs. Arthur Crawford, formerly of Beloit, was among the guests at Mrs. Kittle's luncheon. Another guest was Miss Nora Atwood, under whom Mrs. Kittle graduated in kindergarten work some years ago at Winona, Minn. Mrs. Kittle had long wondered where Miss Atwood was, and by accident discovered that she, and her old friendship was happily revived.

Social functions incident to the opening of American university to the faculty and student reception at the gymnasium. Miss Mary Louise Brown, formerly of Appleton, was in the receiving line. Mrs. Lovell Huelster, who with Prof. Huelster has just come from Oshkosh to Washington, assisted in the dining room. Dr. and Mrs. Delos O. King, formerly of Appleton, were naturally among those present, with their niece, Miss Helen Barrow of Argyle, who holds the Wisconsin scholarship at American this year.

Last Saturday the Faculty Women's club of American gave a picnic at Rock Creek Park, which is one of the most delightful places in the world for picnics around outdoor fireplaces under the trees, accompanied by the sound of the off-en-rushing stream. Miss Brown, Dr. and Mrs. Kinsman, Prof. and Mrs. Huelster, and Miss Barrow were there. Members of the faculty and their families were the only guests.

Washington newspapermen has many examples of husbands and wives working on different papers or news services, and soon a new addition to these journalists' families will be made with a Wisconsin man as the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Martin of the U. S. Soldiers' Home have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cecelia Martin, known to everybody as "Jackie," picture editor of the Washington Herald, to Polhill Wheeler Johnson, day city editor of the rival morning paper, the Washington Post.

While Mr. Johnson's parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Johnson, live in Macon, Ga., Mr. Johnson is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin school of journalism. He is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity, Sigma Delta Chi Journalism fraternity, and the National Press Club.

Miss Martin is a graduate of Syracuse University, a member of Delta Gamma sorority, the Women's National Press club, and the Washington Newspaper Women's club. Hoover Speeches Only Intended to Amplify Beliefs

Iowa Campaign Sally Seen
As Appeal for Farmers' Vote

Washington — Within the compass of his acceptance speech and a trio of campaign addresses, President Herbert Hoover still hopes to confine the major document of his campaign for re-election. It will constitute his own report on his stewardship, his own estimate of what are the true values, political and economic, of the presidential campaign of 1932. The broad outlines of what he will say for his administration or commit himself to for the years ahead in the event of re-election, already are before the voters.

First Speech in Iowa
They were written into Mr. Hoover's acceptance of his second nomination. That speech stands as an all-embracing foreword to the personal campaign book the President contemplates. The speeches to come will only amplify major considerations or issues of the campaign as he sees them.

Through the locations chosen for two of the three campaign addresses Mr. Hoover is scheduled now to deliver, a glimpse of their general character and place in his plans is obtainable.
One was at Des Moines in Mr. Hoover's native Iowa on October 4, synchronizing almost to the day with the democratic state convention in New York around which farm residents, and officials witnessing the premier of "Back Street."

Mr. and Mrs. Ballhazay Meyer and their daughter, Sylvia, returned last week from their summer at the Brule. Mr. Meyer is a member of the interstate commerce commission, and they formerly lived in Madison, Wauwatosa, and Superior. Mr. Meyer also once taught at Oshkosh.

Washington society regrets the departure of the former Secretary of commerce and Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, who spend their summers in northern Wisconsin. They are returning to Chicago, and Mrs. Lamont has been here turning their house over to the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. Their daughter, Mrs. Charles Eskridge Saltzman, and her husband are living in Montclair, N. J.

hover expectations of significant developments in the democratic Presidential campaign.
The other address definitely decided upon will be in New York City, on a day yet to be named.

Campaign Speeded Up
The purport of this seems that in Des Moines Hoover wanted to round out his appeal for a vote of confidence from the farmers and their allied and associated groupings; while in New York his message will be directed to the industrial elements. The third address is yet to be decided upon.

That Mr. Hoover moved into the mid-campaign period under increasing pressure from some of his advisers to widen the scope of his own personal share in the battle could not be doubted. Party defeat in the Maine election inspired a speeding up of the republican national campaign under urgency of Mr. Hoover himself.

Yet both because of his feeling as to the dignity and requirements of the high office he holds, and because of his personal choice of campaigning methods, well established in 1928 when he made only four major addresses besides his acceptance speech and five short talks, the President appeared loath to enlarge on his speaking program.

What the immediate exigencies of the political situation might force upon him in the way of additional personal appearance remains to be determined as the campaign rolls along.

Parties

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Hansen, 1012 Harriman-st., attended a birthday celebration recently at "Amherst Junction" in honor of Mrs. Frederika Hansen, their grandmother. Mrs. Hansen, who is 93, was the guest of more than 60 persons at her home near Amherst Junction where she had resided since 1866. She came to America from Denmark with her husband, Chris, and settled in the New Hope township among the Indians. She had five children, 26 grandchildren, and 18 great grandchildren.

The last of a series of card parties given by Christian Mothers' society of St. Therese church under the direction of Mrs. John Adrians and Mrs. W. Homes took place Tuesday afternoon at the parish hall. Mrs. Joseph Kohl won the grand prize at schafkopf and prizes for the day were won by Tom Hayes and Mrs. A. Oesterich. The grand prize at bridge was awarded to Mrs. J. M. Hodges, and the day's prizes to Mrs. C. J. Rockstroh and Mrs. Peter Williamson. Mrs. J. B. Fowler won both grand prize and prize for the day at dice.

The Eleven O'Clock Bridge club met for the first time this fall at the home of Margaret Jansen, 1123 S. Madison-st., Monday evening. Prizes were won by the Misses Gertrude McDonough and Louise Murphy. The next meeting will be held Monday evening at the home of Miss Kathryn Dohr, South River-st.

Seven tables were in play at the card party given by the Auxiliary to Spanish War Veterans Tuesday afternoon in the basement of Appleton State Bank. Prizes at schafkopf were won by Mrs. Dora Welhouse and Mrs. L. J. Strutz, at bridge by Mrs. Emma Hassman, and at dice by Mrs. D. H. Gurnee.

A card party will be sponsored by Ladies Aid society of St. Joseph church at 2:30 Thursday afternoon at the parish hall. Mrs. W. Neugebauer will be in charge. Schafkopf, bridge, and plumpsack will be played.

A number of friends and relatives surprised Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Nussbaum, 326 S. Spruce-st., Monday evening in honor of their fifth wedding anniversary. Eighteen guests were present. Cards provided the entertainment.

Reelect Officers Of Social Union of Methodist Church

All officers of the Methodist Social Union were reelected at a meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the church. They are: Mrs. J. R. Denyes, president; Mrs. George Nixon, first vice president; Mrs. H. F. Heckert, second vice president; Mrs. John Engel, Jr., secretary and Mrs. E. Rector, treasurer. The new year will begin Jan. 1, 1933.

Because the first week in December is so crowded with outside activities, the dates for the annual Christmas bazaar have been changed to Nov. 29 and 30. Mrs. S. C. Rosebush is chairman of the bazaar meals.

The group decided to continue the support of the free bed at Bell Memorial hospital at Green Bay.

Mrs. Emma Dutcher will be general chairman of the Harvest supper, to be served Oct. 18. Mrs. A. B. Fisher will be in charge of the three meals to be served during the conference convention of the Women's Home Missionary society Oct. 27 and 28. Chairmen for the meals to be served during the State Young People's convention Nov. 4, 5, and 6 are Mrs. George Nolting, Mrs. William Hoh, Mrs. L. S. Dillon, Mrs. B. G. Bialkowski, Mrs. Mable Trenery, Mrs. A. B. Fisher, Mrs. W. D. Schlafier, Mrs. G. C. Cast, Mrs. C. L. Clark, Mrs. Mell Buxton, and Mrs. Emma Dutcher.

Fifty-eight members attended the meeting. Devotions were led by Mrs. N. H. Brokaw, and members of the crew of the Shamrock, Mrs. Mable Trenery and Mrs. A. B. Fisher, captains, were hostesses.

Call Convention of W. C. T. U. Tomorrow At Sturgeon Bay

A delegation of about 20 or 25 members of Women's Christian Temperance Union of Appleton will attend the inter-county convention at Sturgeon Bay Thursday. Representatives will be present from rence Nussbaum, 326 S. Spruce-st., Monday evening in honor of their fifth wedding anniversary. Eighteen guests were present. Cards provided the entertainment.

New Officers Named By Church Guild

New officers of St. Martha Guild of All Saints Episcopal church were elected at a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Paul Cary, Jr., 218 S. Rankin-st. They are Mrs. George Cameron, president; Mrs. L. D. Utts, vice president; Mrs. M. G. Clark, secretary, and Mrs. Eric Galpin, treasurer. Ten members were present.

The next meeting will be Oct. 18 at the home of Mrs. M. G. Clark, 1617 N. Durkee-st.

Outagamie, Brown, Door, and Kewaunee-cos.

The convention will open at 9:30 in the morning at the Congregational church with devotions and a crusade hymn. The Rev. J. Tink, pastor of the Methodist church, will give an address of welcome, and Mrs. Martha Pinney will also welcome the women. Mrs. Bernice Laird, Black Creek, will respond for the visitors. Committees will be appointed and reports given. Officers will be elected at this session.

In the afternoon a memorial service will be held at 1:15 with Mrs. Eliza Douglas, Hortonville, in charge. A report on the national convention will be given by Mrs. Edith Williams, Green Bay, and an address on the Eighteenth Amendment and American Life will be given by the Rev. J. Yookum of the Congregational church at Sturgeon Bay. Mrs. Le Baron Austin, Green Bay, will sing a solo, and the Rev. F. Frankson, Green Bay, will give a talk. A report of the resolutions committee and benediction will close the sessions. Over 100 delegates are expected to attend from the four counties.

Council Asks For Survey for Street Opening

Committee Also Plans Joint Meeting With Property Holders

Menasha—A definite step toward the opening of Fifth-st. from Manitowoc-st. east to London-st. proposed for some time, was taken at a meeting of the council on Tuesday evening when a resolution authorizing the street committee to make the necessary survey was approved.

The street committee also was instructed to conduct a joint meeting with interested property owners and to make a report at the next regular session.

The resolution, introduced by Alderman Knoelke, met with no opposition and following its passage, Alderman Grode, chairman of the street committee, announced that the meeting with the property owners will open at the city office at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and continue with an inspection of the grounds.

Mayor N. G. Rummel spoke briefly on the economy following reading of the financial report for the month and of the audit of city accounts completed recently by W. H. Nelson.

Pleds for Harmony
Although the audit showed a total revenue surplus for the remainder of the year of $52,233.47, it pointed out that only about $18,000 would be available for current use. Stressing that point, Mayor Rummel emphasized the need for careful financing, predicting that many people will be unable to pay their taxes next year. Although he said that he wished all the city's unemployed could be put to work on improvement projects, he asserted that it would be impossible and maintained that the only way to reduce taxes is to spend less money.

A report that large out of town trucks were using Broad-st. as a regular thoroughfare and that the street was not built to withstand such heavy traffic was made by Alderman T. E. McGillan and following some discussion a motion ordering the street committee, the city attorney and the chief of police to erect signs on the street to attract attention to the dangerous traffic situation and the Brin theatre corner and urging that an overhead slow down signal be installed, was read at Tuesday's session. Alderman Grode opposed the plan but the matter was referred to the street committee for investigation.

The resignation of E. H. Schultz from the city park board, presented by Mayor Rummel last week, also was read and accepted, but the mayor announced that appointment of the new member would be deferred until later.

A communication from officials of the Whiting Airport, pointing out that the twin cities have been afforded mail service at the airport without charge in the past, but that the port could not continue to offer its facilities for that purpose without remuneration, was referred to the finance committee and the city attorney, with instructions to confer with Neenah officials.

Going to Meeting
Although Alderman Grode and Grade voted no, Fire Chief Paul Thelmer was authorized to attend the meeting of fire department heads of the Great Lakes association, opening in Milwaukee Wednesday. Grode and Grade objected on the grounds of economy but Alderman Brezinski, who introduced the motion, contended that such meetings were important from the standpoint of insurance rates and fire protection and that the chief should attend.

The September report of John Sensenbrenner, superintendent of poor, revealed an expenditure of $1,418.15, with $471.69 charged to the county.

Alderman Baldwin moved that the city attorney be instructed to notify officials of the C. H. St. and B. railroad that repairs are needed on the Paris-st. crossing. The attorney also was instructed to serve legal notice on the Menasha Wooden Ware corporation relative to the removal of dwellings located on Lawson and Fox-st. lines. A petition to a circuit court in the northern district of Grandview-ave. 300 feet east from Tayco-st. was granted.

Germanias Open New Bowling Schedule

Menasha—The Germania Golf-fellowship bowling league opened its 1932-33 season on Tuesday evening with six teams participating.

R. Kellhauser, anchor man for the Yankee papers, took high single game honors with 204 pins while his team dropped three straight games to the Floral Center Green House aggregation. The Voissem electric won a pair from the Laemmrich funeral home and Held Electric dropped two out of three tilts to the Seithamer grocer.

In American Legion league play, with four three-man teams entered, M. Auer of the Doughbors took high individual game with 211, while his team snared two out of three games from the Supply Train and the Red Legs dropped a pair to the Ammunition Train trio.

COMMITTEE TO MEET
Menasha—The poor committee will meet with John Sensenbrenner, superintendent of poor, at the city offices Thursday evening. Routine work will be done and applications for aid considered.

THE NAME "COMET" comes from the Greek, meaning "hair." Contrary to popular belief, all comets do not have hair, or tails, and more surprising, perhaps, is the fact that the tailless variety is in the majority. The reason that many persons immediately associate the long, tail-like appendage with the comet is because that type of comet is the only kind visible to the naked eye. The more common tailless phenomenon can be seen only through a telescope.

Hold-Up Attempt Reported by Man

August Luka Attacked on Way Home, He Tells Police

Menasha—What appears to have been an attempted hold-up resulted in a call to Menasha police about midnight Tuesday.

August Luka, 525 Sixth-st., told police that he was walking home from work about midnight and was attacked by a single assailant. The man threw a rug over Luka's head and knocked him down, but Luka shouted for help and when a neighbor responded to the cry, the attacker disappeared.

About $55 which Luka had on his person was missing after the scuffle and it was at first believed that the attacker had taken it. Later investigation by Luka and Menasha police at the scene of the attack resulted in finding the money, however. The rug and a hammer also were found.

The man was described as wearing a blue suit and a gray cap but no other clues to his identity have been discovered.

Menasha Society

Menasha—The Rev. and Mrs. John Best and Mrs. F. Ender are in attendance at the state conference of the Congregational church which was to be concluded at LaCrosse today. The three delegates were elected at a meeting of the Congregation last week.

Twin City Old Fellows will meet in their lodge rooms Wednesday evening. Work in the initiatory degree will be done.

A card party, sponsored by Christian Mothers of St. Mary's parish, was under way in St. Mary school hall Wednesday afternoon. Play will continue Wednesday evening.

Royal Neighbor society entertained at a public card party in Knights of Columbus lodge rooms Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served.

Ladies' Missionary society of the Congregational church held a monthly business meeting in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon. The Junior group served.

Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, St. Patrick's parish, entertained at cards in St. Patrick's school hall Tuesday evening. Honors in bridge went to Mrs. Ida Getzke and Miss Sabina Shea and in whist to Mrs. Madella Dahl and Mrs. Hugh Huebner.

The Peppy Eight club met at the home of Mrs. George Powers Tuesday afternoon. Honors at cards went to Mrs. M. Handler and Mrs. Eli Clough.

The Double Four club will hold no meeting Wednesday but will meet at the home of Mrs. John Kolasinski, Lake-st., next Monday evening.

The Neenah Amusement association will sponsor a dancing party in Eagles' hall Saturday evening.

Regular Patrol Work Inaugurated by Scouts

Menasha—Regular patrol sessions, under the direction of patrol leaders named last week, were started at a meeting of boy scouts of Troop 3 in St. Thomas parish house Tuesday evening. A new opening ceremony, which includes a bugle duet, also was inaugurated. Don Ruch, scout master, was in charge.

THE NAME "COMET" comes from the Greek, meaning "hair." Contrary to popular belief, all comets do not have hair, or tails, and more surprising, perhaps, is the fact that the tailless variety is in the majority. The reason that many persons immediately associate the long, tail-like appendage with the comet is because that type of comet is the only kind visible to the naked eye. The more common tailless phenomenon can be seen only through a telescope.

Library Circulates 8,015 Books in Month

Menasha—Circulation of books at Elisha D. Smith library totaled 8,015 during September, marking a gain of 1,178 over the corresponding month of last year, according to the monthly report of Miss Harriet Northrup, librarian. Average daily circulation was 320 books.

The teachers of the city drew 380 books for use in their school rooms and for distribution to students. Books repaired numbered 516; students assisted, 235; new readers registered 101; reading room attendance, 1,349 and fines collected on over due books $12.78.

A new rule has been adopted for the reading room. Anyone sitting at any of the four tables toward the south is expected not to talk. The four tables toward the north are for study, and quiet conversation will be permitted in order that students may work together.

New Ideas Seen as Industry's Need

Constant Change Necessitates New Methods, Moore Declares

Menasha—"There is need for industry today to be stimulated by new ideas," Frank Moore, of Ponca City, Okla., sales promotion manager for the Continental Oil company told the Menasha Kiwanis club at its regular meeting in Hotel Menasha Tuesday noon.

Referring to general merchandising, Moore said that constant change necessitates new methods and that in every business there is only one "normal," the normal that is born with the dawn of every new day.

Moore opened his talk with an explanation of the gasoline and lubricating oil manufacturing industry, explaining that there are three kinds of gasoline, natural, straight-run, and cracked, and that a blend of the three makes the ideal fuel for internal combustion engines.

Lubricating oil, he said, must have four qualifications. It must separate working surfaces, must reduce the coefficient of friction, must resist heat, and must seal piston rings.

Following his address, Moore responded to a number of questions relative to the chemical analysis of ethyl gasoline and to the effect of ethyl gasoline in adding power and preventing knocks.

Mrs. Haugh Bruised When Hit by Truck
Menasha—Mrs. H. O. Hough, Cleveland-st., was severely bruised when struck by an automobile at the intersection of Mill and Washington-st. Tuesday evening, according to a Menasha police report.

Mrs. Hough was walking across Water-st. and the car, going west on Mill-st., failed to stop for the Mill-st. arterial sign and also failed to stop after the accident, it was reported. Although the driver had not been located early today, the license plates on the car were issued Ernest Seifert, Milwaukee, police said.

Menasha Democrats Outline Program

Menasha—Plans for pre-election campaign activities were outlined at a meeting of the Menasha Democratic club in the library auditorium Tuesday evening. Further meetings of the organization will follow announcement of the democratic state platform outlined at Madison Tuesday, it is planned.

Bricklayers End Convention Today

Final Business Session Is Scheduled for This Afternoon

Neenah—The twenty-first annual convention of the Wisconsin State conference of bricklayers, masons and plasterers international union, will come to a close Wednesday afternoon following a two day session at Neenah Eagles' hall. A small representation of the various locals throughout Wisconsin has been present.

The Tuesday morning session was opened shortly after 9 o'clock by August Rapprager, president of the Neenah local, who stated that the conference was organized just 20 years ago at Neenah. The gavel used at the present sessions was the same that called the first meeting to order. President Jones presided at the opening work.

Mayor George E. Sade gave a short address of welcome. Anton Nielsen, a general contractor, also of Neenah, made a plea for the education of the younger generation in the crafts in order that they might fill the shoes of those who are reaching the declining years, as new methods are springing up at all times and the younger men and boys are the ones who will be the future contractors and grow up with these methods. E. J. Wright of Neenah, vice president of the Wisconsin Council of Carpenters, talked on growing relationship between the bricklayers and stone masons union and the carpenters' union, two organizations that represent the main building crafts. As a carpenter he was invited to attend the bricklayers' convention and extended an invitation to the bricklayers and masons to attend the Carpenter convention in December at Green Bay.

Annual reports of the president, vice president, secretary-treasurer and auditor were read. Committees also were appointed. The afternoon session was short. During a recess, the delegates went on trip through the Neenah Paper company mill.

Dan Collins, special deputy from headquarters, arrived Tuesday afternoon.

Oshkosh is seeking the next convention and will make a bid for it at the Wednesday afternoon session. Officers will be elected and the next meeting place selected then.

Tuesday evening, the Neenah local entertained the delegates and members of the local and neighboring union members at a smoker and lunch at the Neenah Amusement association club rooms.

Mystery Comedy Is Presented by Club

Menasha—"The opening presentation of 'The Yellow Shadow,' a mystery comedy, three acts written by Clark Willard and staged by the Goodfellowship club of Trinity Lutheran church, pleased a large audience in the church school auditorium Tuesday evening. The show will be given again Wednesday evening.

The play was presented in three acts under the direction of Mrs. George C. Berger. Music was provided by the Jensen brothers, and an accordion specialty was played by Gerhardt Hinz as an additional feature.

Miss Dorcas Page appeared as Nell Travis, a housekeeper; Walter Thornton as Gilbert Wright; Mrs. Fred Lehmann as Alice Perkins; Mrs. Walter Thornton as Mildred Marvin; Mrs. Earl Page as Hazel Wayne; George Berger as Jed Travis; Edward Burr as Herbert Marvin; Emil Lehmann as Sheriff Macklin; Mrs. Albert Bender as J. Steel; and Earl Tewes as Wong Song.

Two Dresses Stolen From Menasha Shop

Menasha—The theft of two dresses from the Paris Dress Shop, 229 Main-st., several days ago, has been reported by Mrs. Emma Geib, proprietress. Two women were sentenced in municipal court Monday for a similar offense at Oshkosh and some connection between the two cases may be established.

In the Menasha case, a strange woman entered the store and is believed to have taken the dresses while Mrs. Geib was working in the fitting room at the rear of the establishment. Mrs. Geib returned to the store proper in time to see the woman leaving hurriedly, and a check-up revealed that the two dresses, one of wine colored velvet and the other of black crepe, were missing.

Mrs. Kellogg Named President of Lodge

Neenah—Mrs. F. W. Kellogg was elected president of the Neenah Ladies Sir Knights group at its organization meeting in the Masonic temple Tuesday evening. Mrs. A. E. Arneemann was named vice president. Mrs. Arthur Ritger, secretary and Mrs. O. W. Jones, treasurer.

The new group will meet on the third Tuesday of each month, on the same evening that the Knights Templar convene. Future individual meetings, joint social programs will be arranged.

Inquest Called in DePere Child's Death

Menasha—An inquest into the death of Robert Kerin, 10, of DePere, will be held in the courthouse at Green Bay at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The boy was fatally injured recently when he was struck by a car driven by Joseph Martell of Menasha.

GIRL SCOUTS MEET

Menasha—The Menasha and Lola groups of Menasha camp fire girls continued regular activities at a meeting in the Congregational church parlors Tuesday evening. Miss Mae Bell Gear and Mrs. M. G. Clark were in charge.

Forces Organize For Battle Over Soldier Benefits

Question Promises to be Dominant at Congressional Session

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Tremendous forces are forming on both sides of the struggle over benefits to war veterans, which promises to be a dominant issue before Congress in the coming short session and probably before the Senate passes legislation with a fourth of the federal government's annual outlay already going to the various forms of "relief" for war veterans and their dependents, the two major organizations of World War veterans are strongly organized to lobby Congress for still further expenditures.

The American Legion has joined the Veterans of Foreign Wars in demanding cash payment of the bonus, which would now involve more than $2,400,000,000. The American Legion is seeking Senate passage of the bill already passed by the House of Representatives providing many millions in pensions for the widows and orphans of World War veterans who die of causes not connected with their service.

Seek Drastic Cuts
Meanwhile, conservatives and liberals, war veterans and non-war veterans, business men and army and navy officers, Democrats and Republicans, are joining to combat further expenditures and to make drastic cuts in present "benefits" to veterans.

It is axiomatic, however, that a law for the benefit of war veterans and their dependents is rarely repealed. Probably the only effect of the moves to repeal or amend present laws will be to divert attention from adding to veterans' benefits, to provide ammunition against the new proposals, and to keep the veterans' lobbyists busy on the defensive instead of the offensive. There are sure to be bills to repeal or amend the emergency officers' retirement act, which was passed over a presidential veto after every senator and congressman received strong telegrams from his local legion posts and which destroyed the original democratic principle of veterans' legislation that officers and privates were to be treated alike according to their disabilities, not according to their rank; or the Spanish-War veterans' pension, which was passed over President Hoover's veto while the two chief lobbyists for it, Gov. Fred Green of Michigan and former Sen. Riege W. Means of Colorado, took advantage of their privileges to enter the Senate chamber during sessions; and to diminish the benefits to men whose disabilities did not result from their service.

Sims Quits Legion
Rear Admiral William S. Sims, who commanded the naval forces during the World War, has resigned from the American Legion because of its bonus stand at the same time characterized the Spanish-War pension as "a gift and outrage to the American taxpayers." Among the World War veterans leading in opposition to further benefits to ex-soldiers are Senators David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and Hiram Bingham of Connecticut. Representatives Royal S. Johnson of South Dakota and Robert B. Simmons of Nebraska. Simmons and Johnson opposed the bonus, opposed the emergency officers' retirement act which grants large "retirement" pay to men earning good livings working for the government or in private life, and they are now proposing a new board to determine veterans' compensation cases. They realize that a just administration of present laws will help prevent more generous laws, just as rather stringent administration in earlier days enabled the "veterans bloc" to put through some of the newer liberalizations of the law which are costing the taxpayers millions.

Meanwhile, a joint congressional committee is studying the question of the relief of war veterans. Taxpayers are beginning to realize that out of every dollar they pay Uncle Sam in income taxes, excise taxes, stamp taxes, and customs duties a quarter is going to pensions, compensation, and hospitalization for veterans. Three-quarters of the public debt that was outstanding on June 30, 1932 is just about equal to what the government had paid in benefits to veterans of all wars up to that date, for since the nation was founded, it has paid more than $15,300,000,000 for veterans' benefits.

This total, of course, is trivial as compared with what it will be in a few years at the present rate of a billion dollars a year with the peak cost of World War veterans' benefits, even without "liberalizing" the laws, some years in the future.

Passed Over Veto
Presidential vetoes mean nothing when veterans' benefits are under consideration. The original bonus act was passed over President Coolidge's veto. The emergency officers' retirement act and the Spanish-American War pension liberalization act were passed over vetoes. The most important liberalization of the World War veterans' compensation act was a compromise measure passed after the President had vetoed another act. Every President the United States has elected since the World War, and every President it is likely to elect, realizes the real danger of going too far with veterans' measures. But Senators and Congressmen are more amenable to the pressure brought to bear on them to vote for measures approved by the national veterans' organizations. Few are strong enough to stand up against it, while most of them privately admit that every liberalization they enact simply

'Lasses-Making Time on Southern Plantations

Hot Coffee, Min.—(P)—There were huckleberry pies in the pantry, hot biscuits on the stove, fresh butter in the cellar and grins on a million faces today, for it's 'lasses-making time down south.

'Lasses is the answer to the plea of a poor man's sweet tooth. It is a syrup, gummy and heavy but there is a gastro-nomical affinity between hot biscuits, butter and molasses that makes southern folk go into fits of ecstasy.

Those who drink from silver goblets call it syrup, those who drink from gourd dippers call it 'lasses, and the Negroes, who drink from cupped hands, call it molasses, but it's all the same. It is made fresh in the fall and usually kept in jugs all winter—big brown jugs with corncob stoppers.

The syrup is made by pressing the juice from sugar cane and cooking it in big vats. Almost every farm and plantation has a cane mill worked by mule power.

'Lasses making time is the real harvest time down south. The cotton has been gathered, the pigs are getting fat and the collards and pumpkins are begging for frost. The children and grandchildren come home from the cities "to stay a whet."

It is a time of feasting and rejoicing—roast quail for breakfast, polikiker and cornpone for dinner, baked ham, squirrel pie, sweet potatoes and six-layer cakes for supper.

And in the evening when the bullfrogs howl in the bayous, the family gathers in the "sittin' room" and the mother or grandmother pumps an old hymn out of an old organ. The head of the family brings the lamp close to his big chair and reads a verse or so from the family Bible about the bounty of the harvest.

It is an inevitable ceremony. The children are hustled to bed early with promises of feasts the next day—fresh trout, doughnuts, oatmeal cookies, barbecued mutton, baked chicken and hot biscuits and 'lasses. Then the grownups go on the front gallery and talk—the women about things women talk about, the men about politics and crops and hard times.

The Negroes shuffle out from their cabins with banjos and guitars and satisfaction over a meal of sideneat and cabbage and molasses. Some of their pickin' nles think all candy is made with cane syrup many would throw away a box of bonbons for a cold biscuit in which a Negro mammy had punched a hole with her finger and poured it full of syrup.

Officers Arrive For Installation

Equitable Reserve Association Exercises This Evening

Neenah—Supreme officers and trustees of the Equitable Reserve association are arriving in the city today to attend the installation of 40 officers of assemblies within the Fox River district association including Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac and Neenah, Wednesday evening.

The installation will be open and hundreds of members and their friends from these cities have planned to be present for the installation exercises which begin at 8 o'clock, followed by the dance program for the balance of the evening.

The Supreme officers residing outside of Neenah who are here for the event are Supreme President Judge John C. Karel, Milwaukee; past president and chairman of the board, C. M. Robinson, Oshkosh; vice president, Judge A. H. Goss, Oshkosh, and trustees, T. W. Hamilton, Berlin, Wis.; J. S. Tolversen, Fulda, Minn.; Judge J. O'Neill, Prairie du Chien, Wis., and E. R. Williams, Oshkosh.

The event will be an exceptional one in the history of the organization inasmuch as the entire body of supreme officers will officiate and assist Judge John C. Karel as master of ceremonies in the joint installation of officers of five assemblies.

High School Classes

Display Canned Goods

Neenah—The two home economics classes at Neenah high school exhibited a display of canned goods at the school Tuesday afternoon. About 30 mothers attended the exhibit and refreshments were served. Miss Charlotte Peters is the instructor in charge.

CALLS FIRE DEPARTMENT
Neenah—The Neenah fire department responded to an alarm from the residence of Miss Mae Meyer, 241 First-st., about 10:40 Tuesday evening. A furnace door had blown open, filling the house with smoke, but no damage was done.

leads on to demands for more benefits.

The National Economy League and the United States Chamber of Commerce are leading the fight among business men against further expenditure for veterans. But the real fight against "veterans control" is cutting across every party, every interest, every occupation. When the taxpayers see their burdens increased and their benefits from government in the way of services decreased, while payments for veterans are increasing, they begin to realize that they must organize to offset the pressure of veterans' organizations.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce proposes reductions in veterans' benefits amounting to nearly $414,000,000, which, if affected, would nearly achieve the half-billion dollar cut in government costs urged by President Hoover and would equal half the 25 per cent proposed by the Democratic national platform. The chamber proposes to repeal the Spanish-American War pension law which gives pensions for non-service disabilities, to

Roosevelt and Al Smith Join Hands in Fight

Two Democratic Leaders Meet and Rejoice Over Common Victory

Albany, N. Y.—(P)—Two hands clasped in floodlight lingered in the memory of Democrats today as they squared away for final tussles with Republicans.

They were the hands of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith, who called each other "Al" and "Frank" as they grinned over a common victory.

Both had fought for the nomination of Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman as governor. As opposition finally melted and success arrived, they met on the platform of the Democratic state convention last night.

Ten thousand pairs of eyes watched them. It was the first time they had met since before the Chicago National convention, where Roosevelt won and Smith lost the nomination for the presidency.

Smith, arriving to place Lehman in nomination, went on the platform. Shaking hands with persons there, he approached the spot where Roosevelt was standing. It was "hello, Al" and "hello, Frank" and then the handshake.

"Comes From Heart"

Tumult drowned their further remarks, but as reported by Guernsey T. Cross, the governor's secretary, the dialogue over the handclasp was:

Roosevelt: "Al, this comes from the heart."

Smith: "That goes for me, too."

During his speech, Smith referred to Roosevelt by name once. Reviewing his own efforts as governor for social legislation, he said:

"And when I left here on Jan. 1, 1929, I left with a feeling of satisfaction because we handed that program to Roosevelt and Lehman."

A few minutes later he expressed confidence that the Democratic national ticket would be successful.

"The Democratic party," he said, "enters the field not shackled by any false pride, but with a platform and a program of progressive reform that will permit this nation to go forward, that will solve its economic problems, its problems abroad, and lift from business the paralysis that is causing unemployment, and that can be accomplished by a Democratic victory, by the election of the Democratic candidates in the coming election."

Lauds Lehman

Roosevelt, addressing the convention, praised Lehman and said that under Smith's governorship "this state was put on the map among all states, as the criterion of successful state government."

"I look forward," he continued "to Jan. 1, 1933, when I turn over the reins of the state government to that grand old right hand of mine, Herbert H. Lehman."

"Yes, we can say 'happy days are here again.' And with equal sincerity I look forward to the 4th of March when I go down to Washington and find there the stalwart form of Bob Wagner."

He referred to United States Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, who was renominated.

The nominations followed a day packed with fast moving events.

First, the state from hotel conferences reports that the alliance of Tammany Hall men and upstate leaders, opposing the Lehman nomination, was holding fast. Then John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, was said to have suggested several shifts including the selection of Wagner for governor and Lehman for the senate.

As the huge armory filled for the final convention session, there still was no definite word from the hotel where John E. Curry, Tammany chief, battled against the Lehman selection.

Lehman Stands Firm

He and up-staters, headed by Edward F. O'Connell, Albany leader, were for Mayor John Boyd Thatcher of Albany. Roosevelt was reported to have advised Lehman "not to give ground."

Powerful Brooklyn groups had announced their preference for Lehman. Smith argued with Curry against opposition to the lieutenant governor. Finally, one of Curry's own district leaders, Edward A. Ahearn, was reported to have declared he would not go along in the opposition to the New York banker.

Curry yielded and a slate headed by Lehman was nominated without a roll call.

The ticket also includes M. William Bray of Utica for lieutenant governor; Morris S. Tremaine of Buffalo, for comptroller; John J. Bennett, Jr. of Brooklyn, for attorney general; Cuthbert W. Pound of Lockport, for chief judge of the court of appeals and John Fitzgibbon of Oswego and Elmer E. Studley of Queens-co for congressmen at large.

Wagner, Tremaine, Bennett and Pound are incumbents. Pound is a Republican and has both party endorsements.

Both Bray and Fitzgibbon, as delegates to the Chicago convention, supported Smith for the presidential nomination.

KING FORCES SEPARATION

Crown Prince Michael of Rumania, who has been visiting his mother, Princess Helen, estranged wife of King Carol, in London, for two weeks left today by motor for Dover to return home. Princess Helen was quoted by the London Daily Mail yesterday as saying the king cut short the prince's visit because he resented the publicity given the event. She seemed lonely as they left in a big automobile. She was dressed in black, relieved only by a silver fox fur piece, and accompanied by her sister, Princess Irene of Greece. Michael, bareheaded, smiling, and apparently excited, sat upright with the chauffeur as the car rolled away toward the Kentish coast. General Grigorescu, Michael's aide, took a train for Dover to accompany the prince on the trip back to Bucharest.

Marshes Covered With Mudhens, Hunters Find

BY BERT CLAFLIN

If the number of mudhens that are in evidence so far this fall are any criterion of the duck shooting that is to come when the deep water birds, such as blue-bills, redheads, and canvasbacks, wing their way onto our waters from Canada, it should be a banner year.

There are some ducks on the marshes already, mostly widgeons, pintails and even a few lesser scaup, and a few mallards. Some of these have come from the north, but the real flight of Canadian birds does not arrive here until about the fifteenth to the twentieth of this month.

The acres of reeds that covered the waters of Green Bay along the west shore are mostly locally bred birds. They are small and in poor condition. The same condition prevails on all the lakes down through the Fox River valley, and on Lake Poygan and Butte des Morts. Plenty of coots, and plenty are being shot, but the sport is a poor one compared with shooting ducks that swing in to your decoys and up over your head like "greased lightning" unless the gunner is quick enough and good enough shot to stop them.

There may be thousands of deep water ducks come our way this month. I hope they do. Still, I am a bit skeptical as to them being so plentiful that they will "darken the sky," as reports would have us believe. From information sent me from Saskatchewan and Alberta there has been plenty of water on the breeding places this year, and that means a far better supply of waterfowl than we had last season when the country was dry.

Plover Plentiful

Jacksnipe and certain species of plover appear to be quite plentiful so far this season. Most of the plover seen were the Lesser Yellow Legs and some Killdeer, but very few Golden Plover.

Many species of game birds which a few years ago were very numerous on our marshes appear to have either become extinct or take different routes southward on their migratory flights. There were gallinules, king rails, virginia rails and the very common clapper rails. Plover of all species, and by the millions haunted the shores of most waters. Their plaintive notes were sweet music to the ears of the hunters.

Coots were too common and ducks too plentiful for the hunter to shoot the former. The blue petrels would simply swim aside to let boats pass, not taking the trouble to fly. It was not at all necessary to go to all that effort. They knew they were safe.

But now everything has changed. Most of the so-called hunters are after coots and nothing else. They don't even see the ducks that would come down and give them shots if they had a chance. They paddle forth and back in front of the blinds all day long, chasing and shooting mudhens in open water with absolutely no regard for the law which forbids that kind of hunting. If the proper attempt to enforce the law were made the court rooms would have been crowded the day following the opening day of the shooting season this year.

Dr. Barker to Open School Lyceum Series

Dr. Charles E. Barker, physical adviser to the late William Howard Taft, will open the Appleton High School lyceum series Friday afternoon with the lecture, "How to Get the Most Out of Life."

Dr. Barker, who has talked to more than four million high school boys, formerly worked under the auspices of Rotary International. He advises pupils to have "a strong arm, a clear head and a brave heart," and feels that courage is the foundation of all virtues.

Neither Party Has Forgotten About Congress

Congressional Campaign Committees Bringing Out Siege Guns

BY BYRON PRICE

Washington — No matter how much dust may be raised by the presidential marathon, the public will not be permitted during the next few weeks to lose sight of the fact that a new congress also is to be elected in November.

The congressional campaign committees are preparing to bring out the siege guns.

A lot of this activity, of course, is directed toward personal ends. For their own sakes, individually, the ins want very much to keep their government meal tickets and their committee majorities, while for the same reasons the outs are eager to become the ins.

Beyond this, however, lies a national stake for each party. No one knows better than party managers that whoever is elected President will be at a great disadvantage if he faces a hostile majority in Capitol Hill.

It is for this latter reason that the national organization will be devoting increasing attention from now on to the campaigns for senate and house.

Democrats Have Edge

No one disputes that so far as the senate is concerned, the democrats start with an advantage born of natural circumstances.

Only one-third of the senate is elected at a time. The total membership is evenly balanced now between the parties, and of the thirty-odd seats to be filled this year, about half likewise is held by each party. But it so happens that most of the democratic seats are normally democratic territory, while most of the republican seats are in disputed territory.

To hold what they have, the democrats need to carry Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Missouri, Maryland, Arizona, Ohio, Kansas and New York. The republicans, to hold what they have, must carry Connecticut, Colorado, Wisconsin, Iowa, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Washington, New Hampshire, South Dakota, North Dakota, New Jersey, Nevada, California, Utah, Oregon, Idaho and Indiana.

Only a small percentage of the democratic seats is contested seriously, while virtually all the republican seats are under determined attack.

G. O. P. Trio in Battles

Reports which come over the political grapevine, for instance, agree that is distinguished a republican trio as Senators Moses, Watson and Smoot is in the midst of campaigns as hard-fought as any in their whole lives.

When democratic claims are made against such old-timers as these, the republican organization takes note and sends out for reinforcements.

Home of Lincoln's Ancestor Popular Place for Tourists

Reading, Pa.—(P)—Tourists love to visit a lowroofed, thick-walled house eight miles east of Reading—a house that was once the home of ancestors of one of the world's most famous men.

The visitors' feet are wearing away thresholds once crossed and recrossed, it is curious to recall, by Negro slaves whose master dwelt within. The master was Mordecai Lincoln, great-grandfather of the emancipator. The slaves little dreamed as they went about their task that a descendant of their owner would set their race free.

Mordecai Lincoln came to Pennsylvania from New Jersey where he was in the iron business. Originally the gable end of the house he built near the Philadelphia highway contained a stone with the inscription "M. L. 1773," indicating the probable date of its erection. During his residence there Mordecai was a justice of the peace.

Smoke still curls peacefully from the squat chimney, as it did nearly 200 years ago; cows still graze in lush pastures nearby. Today the building is owned by John B. Hoffman, a Socialist, who lives there, farms and discusses Socialist doctrines at party meetings there twice a month.

300 Boys, Girls in Livestock Exposition

Madison —(P)—Some 300 farm boys and girls have entered the 17th annual junior livestock exposition at the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture here Oct. 25-27.

The competition is open to any boy or girl in the state between the ages of 10 and 21. The principal classes of exhibits are Shorthorn, Hereford, and Aberdeen breeds in the baby beef class; Shropshire, Hampshire, Oxford, Southdown breeds in the lamb class; Poland China, Chester White, Duroc Jersey, Hampshire, Berkshire, Yorkshire, and Tamworth breeds in the pig class.

The beef and pig classes will be judged by J. A. Weaver of the University of Missouri, William G. Miles, a sheep breeder in Rock-co, will judge the lamb classes.

Bitter Campaign Ahead

In the house, the entire membership of 435 is up for election.

The democrats, in the majority in the present house, have made a great talking-point of the fact that they already have picked up two house seats in normally republican Maine. But the republicans are conceding nothing.

This all means that a congressional campaign of more than ordinary ferocity is in the making and soon will be sweeping every debatable precinct.

America Won in Financial Fight, Bankers are Told

Other Nations Believed U. S. to be on Brink of Ruin, Claim

Los Angeles—(P)—America matched her strength against a world that thought financial ruin was in store for the United States, and won, Harry J. Haas of Philadelphia, told the American Bankers association in his presidential address at the annual convention here Tuesday.

"Happier conditions today," he said, "represent a real reestablishment of fundamentally sound banking, business and general economic conditions" as compared to the "banking panic" that surrounded the convention a year ago.

In the very trough of the depression, he said, foreign interests, believing financial ruin was ahead for the United States, continued to dump securities in American markets and withdraw the proceeds in gold.

"Then suddenly in June came the end of Europe's ability to take further gold from this country," Haas said. "America had matched her strength against the world and had won, but other countries seemed to appreciate it before we, ourselves, realized it."

He said the improvement noted today "constitutes one of the greatest tributes to the traditions and institutions of this nation and to the courage and resourcefulness of our people that has ever been written in the annals of the country in times either of peace or war."

He said the people had taken the change from "new era" prosperity to adversity "like true Americans and good soldiers who have never lost a war."

No Social Outbreaks

"Properly rights have been respected," he said. "We have had no social upheavals as witnessed in other parts of the world. The minority have abided by the decision of the majority. We have probably experienced the enactment of some of the greatest constructive measures in our history."

"Our unemployment had never been as great and the fortitude with which they met their conditions is a matter of record. Generous assistance has been rendered to the unfortunate by those who have been able to carry the burden. Many of our outstanding leaders in business and industry have given liberally of their time and effort to public and social matters. In short, no matter what our position in life, we should be proud of the fact that we are citizens of this great country where these things are possible."

"In considering the influences and forces that have led toward recovery from the depression, full recognition should be given to the broad-minded, non-partisan and effective efforts of the national government at Washington in both its legislative and executive branches."

"Yet, a great task of government lies ahead. It has yet to wrestle with over-taxation... We should bear in mind that it is the duty of our people to support the government, and not the government to support the people."

"Need Not Apologize"

As compared with other lines of business he said "banking need not apologize to anyone." He added banking proved itself during the depression to be one of the strongest elements in the economic structure.

Haas said that in 1931, 2,300 banks closed with liabilities of $1,690,000,000, but this did not mean a loss of that much money. He estimated the actual loss to depositors will be less than $500,000,000, a general average per capita loss among depositors of less than $125. He pointed out that nine out of 10 banks were not involved.

"We must admit," said Haas, "that many banks failed due to internal policies that should never have been pursued by their managers. We can not make banks fool-proof by legislation—but we can come near doing so by good management and common sense."

The president attributed a large part of bank failures to the fact that government officials, in both state and national systems, for a period of more than 20 years permitted organization of great numbers of banks with insufficient capital or in places where they never could be successful, and in many instances over the protest of well established banks.

"We are justified in feeling confident that we now stand on the threshold of a return to better banking conditions," he said.

"Legislative measures are not the only means for promoting improvement in banking. The more fundamental actions must come within the spirit and practice of banking itself."

"Our banking methods at heart are sound, our established traditions are fundamentally true. If there have been any deviations from them the remedy is in a return to standard principles, not in a rigid formulation by law of those things that must be left to the dictates of experience and free ascension."

DePere 28, Oconto 6.
Oconto Falls 12, Algoma 0.
Kaukauna 20, Sturgeon Bay 0.
Neenah 34, Two Rivers 0.
Shawano 13, Wausau 14 (Non-conference).

Saturday's Schedule
DePere at Two Rivers.
West DePere at Keweenaw.
Kaukauna at Oconto.
Sturgeon Bay at Neenah.
Algoma at New London.
Marquette at Shawano (Non-conference).

Friday's Game
Oconto Falls at Menasha.

DEPERE—Adding its third victory of the schedule, the DePere High Redbirds top the list of teams in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference, and the Neenah and Kaukauna High elevens are in close pursuit with two victories apiece. The three leaders easily defeated opponents in their last games, DePere trouncing Oconto 28 to 6, Neenah smothering Two Rivers under a 34 to 0 score, and Kaukauna handing Sturgeon Bay a 20 to 0 lacing.

With opponents Saturday that have not shown offensive strength, it seems likely that the trio will stick to their places another week. DePere plays Two Rivers, Neenah meets Sturgeon Bay, and Kaukauna faces Oconto.

Menasha Starts Fast
Results of the last encounters were about what was expected, except perhaps in the game between West DePere and Menasha, which West won, 19 to 13, by a great uphill fight in the last half. The big, powerful Menasha eleven, the reigning champion, played rings around the Black Panthers in the first half, and seemed good enough to go on scoring in the second half but the Panthers began breaking up the invader's running attack, and got their own offense to clicking in the third quarter to even the count.

Alertness by "Nap" Beauregard, a tackle, in recovering a fumble after a punt, put the Panthers in position to score from the 10 yard line and Captain Duffett turned the trick four minutes before the end.

Oconto Falls, by winning from Algoma, 12 to 0, earned a rating with West DePere just below the three undefeated teams. The Falls play their first night game Friday against Menasha in the valley city. Games scheduled Saturday, by the remaining teams, are between West DePere and Keweenaw, where a close match is expected; between Algoma and New London.

San Pedro bowlers in the Knights of Columbus league moved out in front Monday night when they topped three more games. They now have won six straight. The latest victims of the leaders were the Balboas.

Santa Marias and DeSotos moved into second place in standings with five wins and one defeat each for the two weeks of kegling. Third place is held jointly by the Allouez and Pinta teams with four wins each and two defeats.

With three members of the club hitting over 500 the San Pedro five had no trouble at all. The three games were 915, 953, 964 and the match score 2832. E. Schuster had 908, E. Klingert 543 and J. Hamm 873.

Santa Marias were paced by J. Schneider with 163, 196, 210—540.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

ANNOUNCEMENT today of the Lawrence college basketball schedule for 1933 reveals that Marquette university is not on the card and brings the statement from Viking authorities that the Hilltoppers won't be played.

Coach Arthur C. Denney, Vike cage mentor stated that Coach Bill Chandler of Marquette refused to schedule Lawrence this season thus terminating a rivalry that had existed for the past six years and that saw some of the greatest games of the season on each team's schedule.

Chandler refused the games on the grounds Marquette lost something like $115 last year on the two contests. All despite the fact the M. U. gym had as many people in attendance as in former years and the fact that Coach Frank Murray and other Hilltop mentors never kicked.

Marquette has scheduled tentative games with Carroll college instead of the Vikes. And when one recalls that Vander Muehlen and Hunkley now are gone from Carroll and the Pioneers won't beat everything agoing and that if Denney can find someone to replace Haase the Vikes may have a great club this winter—well, it looks as if Chandler is giving Denney the well known run around.

May Get Ball Park

Appleton is to have a new baseball park next summer, according to rumors coming from fairly reliable sources. The "angel" back of the project hasn't been named but the story goes that a park in the upper Third ward is being contemplated.

And another story is that Clarence Baetz, president of the Fox River Valley league for the past couple years will retire this winter and devote his time to building up baseball in the city at least to a point where it can be continued indefinitely.

Pickin's

Don't be alarmed about Beloit beating Dubuque university 32 and 0 last year it was 48 and 0. There's a Lawrence freshman, Ben Gage, Evanston, Ill., who wears a No. 12 football shoe. How'd you like to get that across your face. The Lawrence frosh practice only three times a week so they can spend plenty of time studying. Or is it because the faculty doesn't want the varsity to ruin them. . . . or vice versa.

Werner Witte, Appleton grid and cage official has a 1.1 rating in Michigan high school circles. . . . a one point rating is perfect. . . . bet that one tenth under perfect is because of those cigars Werner smokes. . . . no man can puff those things and be perfect.

Clarence Holkman, high school grid star and a member of Percy Clapp's frosh last year now is at West Point. . . . he wrote Perc the other day it was tough grind but others lived through it so he guessed he could. . . . said he hadn't found time to do much on the gridiron just yet.

Emmett Mortell, considered the outstanding Valley conference athlete last year is at Notre Dame. . . . and he says it's quite a racket. . . . and every other fellow is Italian. . . . and the varsity backs are the hardest things in the world to tackle, like tackling a bucking broncho. . . . has been getting a little extra help from Christman, former West Green Bay boy at Notre Dame and hopes to make second grade. . . . has played second frosh team half and also first team half.

Heard Bob Bonini and Joe Shields went hunting over the week end. . . . Joe didn't get a thing. . . . Bob walked in front of him all the way and Joe couldn't see. . . . Bob tried to use a compass with a shot gun on him arm and couldn't figure out why it was always north to his left despite the fact he faced different directions.

Art Denney was up north over Sunday and caught a small muskie and shot a couple ducks. . . . that's combining sports and saving time.

Lumpkin, Presnell, McKalip and Wilson, all of whom have made the rounds of professional football circles.

Star In Broken Field

Clark earned all-America honors last fall in his first year out of college, and this season he has continued his fine work at quarterback. He is recognized for his uncanny ability to call the right signals at the right time, and is regarded as the best broken field runner in the National league.

The redoubtable Roy (Father) Lumpkin, known wherever football fans meet as "the rambling wreck from Georgia Tech", is having another great season, his third with Portsmouth. He is a 213-pound full-back, plays without a headgear, and is a terror at hitting the line.

Glenn Presnell, 193-pound half-back, is outstanding as a passer and ball carrier. He is serving his second season with the Spartans, prior to which he played with the famed Ironton Tanks. Last year he was selected for the second all-America pro team.

Groom Ashman For Quarter on Vike Grid Team

Elgin, Ill., Youth Expected To Lead Lawrence Against Carroll

BURT ASHMAN, short, stocky little backfield candidate on Coach Percy Clapp's Lawrence college football team has been picked by the Viking mentor as the Moses who is to lead the Vikes out of the football dumps this season from the position of quarter back.

Disheartened over last week's showing when Lawrence gained some 255 yards against St. Norbert college and failed to score a touchdown, Clapp decided to seek elsewhere for a quarterback and will try Ashman. Lawrence was held to a 0 to 0 tie last week by the DePere Catholics.

Ashman was given a shot at quarterbacking last spring but the Lawrence mentor turned his attention to some of the older men in hopes they would develop. Things haven't been so satisfactory and accordingly Clapp has decided to start over again with Ashman the center of his interest.

Invade Waukesha

Lawrence takes to the highways again this weekend and meets Carroll college at Waukesha in a game that does not count in Big Four standings. The contest is the Waukesha game in the home and home arrangement with the Pioneers. The Carroll game in Appleton on Oct. 22, Lawrence homecoming, is the official conference game.

However, the Pioneers, under Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite, will be celebrating Dad's and Mother's day, and are planning to make the afternoon a gala event. The game also marks Thistly's debut in competition with conference teams and the Pioneer gridders would like to give him a win.

Coach Clapp is optimistic about his chances against the Pioneers despite the fact he is aware the Carroll club must have something to beat Milwaukee Teachers. Clapp's old school, by a 14 to 0 count last week. The Blue mentor would like to find another good end but otherwise is satisfied with the line. He

Change Starting Day For 6 Day Bike Races

Chicago—(AP)—Departing from the usual plan, Chicago's twenty-eighth international six-day bicycle race will open on a Wednesday and will close the following Tuesday. Previous events have opened on Sunday and finished on Saturday. The next one will be held in the Chicago Stadium starting Nov. 2.

Lawrence Frosh Play First Game

Meet St. John Military Academy Eleven on Delafield Grid

Lawrence college freshman football team will swing into action this week when it takes a jaunt down to St. John Military Academy, Delafield. The game is one of two scheduled for the frosh this fall by Coach Percy Clapp of the Viking varsity squad. The trip down and back will be made in St. John's bus. The second game on the yearling schedule is Saturday, Nov. 5 at which time the team plays Jordan college, Menominee, Mich.

St. John annually has given the yearlings a real battle and last season two games were played. The cadets last week won from Oshkosh Teachers reserves. Bill Schroeder and Lew Lund have been directing the yearlings in drills and in scrimmage against the varsity. The team drills only three times a week but has a heavy line and a versatile backfield.

The game with Jordan college will mark opening of relations between Lawrence and the new school which is playing its first football. The school was opened this fall for the first time. About 40 boys are on the grid squad.

Last year Carroll was the only team Lawrence trifurmed. The Pioneers were defeated at Waukesha and again at Appleton 18 and 12 and 14 and 6. However, injuries hurt the Pioneer attack and the acquisition of Thistlethwaite is expected to make the team tough this year.

11 Conference Games on Lawrence Cage Schedule

ELEVEN Big Four and Midwest conference basketball games will be played by the Lawrence college team this winter, according to the schedule of Coach Arthur C. Denney, Viking cage mentor and athletic director. Two or three more games, non-conference tilts designed as practice games will be scheduled during the next few weeks.

The Vikings again will play home and home contests with the Big Four schools and will play the same group of Midwest schools that has been met annually. The Midwest road trip this year will see the invasion of Iowa instead of Illinois as last season. Coe and Cornell are the two Iowa schools the Vikes will meet. The two Illinois schools, Monmouth and Knox will come here. Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., also plays here this season.

One cage team missing from the Lawrence schedule this season is Marquette university which the Vikes annually met from 1925 to 1931 and with whom some of the most thrilling contests here and at Milwaukee were staged. Coach Bill Chandler of Marquette refused to meet the Vikes this year on the grounds the team didn't draw well enough to make it profitable, all despite the fact games at Marquette and Appleton always have been exceptionally well attended.

The Lawrence season probably will open with a game during the Christmas holidays to be followed by a couple after New Years. The conference season opens here Jan. 14 with Beloit, there is a lull during the semester examination period, Jan. 20 to Feb. 7, and the season closes with Carroll here on March 3.

The conference schedule:
Jan. 14—Beloit at Lawrence.
Jan. 17—Carroll at Carroll.
Jan. 20—Carleton at Lawrence.
Feb. 7—Ripon at Lawrence.
Feb. 11—Knox at Lawrence.
Feb. 17—Coe at Coe.
Feb. 18—Cornell at Cornell.
Feb. 24—Monmouth at Lawrence.
Feb. 27—Beloit at Beloit.
Feb. 28—Ripon at Ripon.
March 3—Carroll at Lawrence.

South Bend, Ind. Negro in the ten round semi-final, also a non-title affair.

This show, promoted by Humbert Fugazy for a Masonic charity, will close the outdoor season just two days before the indoor campaign begins in the Garden with Benny Leonard battling Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver welterweight, in the feature bout. This Friday night attraction may pack the Garden for Leonard still is a good drawing card and McLarnin always has been a crowd-pleaser.

Canzoneri, however, rates a 2 to 1 favorite over the Schenectady battler who will be substituting for Ray Miller, Chicago southpaw. Miller came down with an attack of boils and had to withdraw.

Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized in this state as light heavyweight champion, will meet Jack Redman.

Orange Preps For Fond du Lac Game Saturday

Can Do Conference a Great Service by Defeating Cardinals

APPLETON high school football team, not rated so highly since the 7 and 0 defeat at East Green Bay last week, is being primed for its greatest test Saturday when it meets Fond du Lac high school at Fond du Lac.

The Orange can do other conference teams a great service Saturday if it stops the Cardinals who so far have won three straight games in league competition. Among the victims was East Green Bay, the score being 13 and 6, Fondy making it decisive with a last minute touchdown on a sleeper pass.

Last Saturday Fondy walloped Manitowoc at Manitowoc by a score of 19 and 0. However, if one is to believe Manitowoc accounts of the game it was a case of the worst team losing rather than the best team winning.

Accounts of the fracas state that Manitowoc failed utterly against the Cards because it fumbled frequently and was guilty of numerous tactical errors and bad judgment.

Fond du Lac's first touchdown came when Manitowoc allowed a punt to be downed on the Manty two-yard stripe. A bad pass from center was fumbled and the ball went rolling around the goal line until a Fondy end flopped on it for a touchdown. The other two markers were scored on straight football.

Appleton last night went through a rather listless workout as the boys tried to keep the biting north wind from going through them. The sharp change in weather actually was uncomfortable and the boys probably thought last Saturday was an ideal day.

Don Johnston, halfback, and Dutcher, guard, both with injured ankles, were missing last night and whether they will return today or before Saturday is a question. Ernie Ruppel, star of last Saturday's game at East also was among the missing, partly because of the bruising he got at the Bay and because of an injury Sunday at home.

New Big Ten Mentors Get First Tests

Spears and Solem Oppose Each Other; Bierman Meets Purdue

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(P)—The Big Ten's three new football coaches, Oles Solem of Iowa, Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, and Dr. Clarence Spear of Wisconsin, will get into championship competition, with two of them pitted against each other.

Solem, after a long successful career at Drake, will pit his Hawkeyes against Wisconsin and Spears in their opening important contests. The experience of directing a Big Ten team will not be new to Spears, however, for he served a hitch at Minnesota, before going to Oregon and bouncing back to Wisconsin.

Neither Iowa nor Wisconsin has been figured as championship caliber, but Bierman at Minnesota, has a squad of very dark horse rating. His championship hopes may die quickly for the Gophers, upset by the critical illness of Myron Uhl, meets Purdue, sharer with Michigan and Northwestern of the 1931 championship.

Purdue appears about as strong as last year and Minnesota will be going somewhere if it wins. Preparation in most camps has taken the form of dummy scrimmage against what opponents are expected to use. Northwestern worked against Michigan passes yesterday, and the Wolverines put in a vigorous session on a defense calculated to half Pug Renner, Ollie Olson and the rest of the Wildcats backs.

Indiana's candidates were told that the naming of a squad of 33 men to go to Columbus for the Ohio State battle, would be delayed until such time as necessary and the Hoosiers are battling hard for places. The Buckeye lineup has been shifted around, with Keefe taking Carroll's place in the backfield, but it is expected that Indiana will face the same starting eleven that mowed down Ohio Wesleyan last week.

Chicago took an easy workout yesterday in its preparation for Yale, but Illinois scrimmaged, with the reserves having the better of the varsity. Of the traveling teams, Chicago, Northwestern and Purdue will set out tomorrow, with Indiana and Iowa moving into hostile territory Friday.

Bonduel Titlist In Lakes League

Home Run in Ninth With Two on Bases Decides Second Battle

Bonduel baseball team in the Land of Lakes league has been crowned champion for the 1932 season by virtue of two wins over Cecil in the play off for the title. The Lakes league played a split season.

The Bonduel wins in title play were by scores of 12 and 4 and 4 and 3. In the second game, with the score 3 and 1 for Cecil, two out in the first of the ninth and two men on, Pat Kazda, second baseman for Bonduel hit a home run to put his team in the lead. Batteries last Sunday were Westphal and Schultz for Bonduel; Gottschalk and Rheinheimer for Cecil. Cecil lost four games, in scheduled play, all to Bonduel and with the two in the playoff, dropped six during the season. Bonduel lost four league games, two to Black Creek and one to Seymour and another to Pulaski. Six times Bonduel shut out opponents while Vanderloop, Seymour, was the only hurler to apply the whitewash brush to the champs.

- * Bonduel 6, Gillette 7.
- Bonduel 4, Cecil 3.
- Bonduel 6, Pulaski 7. (14 innings).
- Bonduel 4, Seymour 2.
- Bonduel 5, Green Valley 0.
- Bonduel 6, Black Creek 7.
- Bonduel 12, Cecil 4.
- Bonduel 10, Pulaski 4.
- Bonduel 9, Seymour 2.
- Bonduel 4, Green Valley 0.
- Bonduel 11, Black Creek 1.
- Bonduel 7, Cecil 0.
- Bonduel 3, Pulaski 0.
- Bonduel 6, Seymour 2.
- Bonduel 5, Green Valley 0.
- Bonduel 10, Black Creek 4.
- Bonduel 12, Cecil 3.
- Bonduel 5, Pulaski 0.
- Bonduel 3, Seymour 7. (14 innings).

- Bonduel 4, Green Valley 2.
- Bonduel 6, Black Creek 8.

My Uhl's Condition Remains Critical

Minneapolis — (P) — Myron Uhl, University of Minnesota football star, continued his determined fight for life in University hospital today as his fellow teammates hopefully waited for a turn for the better in his condition.

The Gopher ball carrier was fighting for the third day against a critical condition caused by pneumonia and an abscessed lung, resulting from an injury in football practice.

Only a slight improvement was noted early today and it was far too little to assure he would recover. They pointed out his condition remained critical and predicted a change for better or worse may occur today.

Nebraska Teams Play 26 Innings; Score Still Tied

Wymore, Neb. — (P) — The championship of the Blue Valley baseball league was not meant to be a marathon, but it has started out that way.

Teams representing Wymore and Fairbury already have played 26 innings, and they are going to continue at Fairbury next Sunday.

In their first meeting they played 13 scoreless innings and then decided to resume some other time. Last Sunday they played 13 more innings, and darkness halted the contest in a 4 to 4 deadlock.

Walter Johnson Is Released by Clark Griffith

"Big Train" Won't be Signed Again Washington Boss Says

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK — (P) — The annual turnover in baseball managers, moving at a faster pace this year than usual, already has left two major league vacancies at Cincinnati and Washington.

The failure of Dan Howley to lift the Cincinnati Reds out of the National league cellar prepared the baseball world for his recent release but there was considerable surprise when Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, announced last night that Walter Johnson was through as manager.

Johnson, the "big train," a terror to American league batsmen for 20 years, had managed the club since 1929. The Senators finished six in that year, second in 1930 and third in 1931 and 1932. Rumors that he would be replaced were current this summer when the Senators fell into a disastrous slump but they played sensational ball in the latter stages of the campaign and it was thought Johnson's job was safe.

Neither Griffith nor Sidney Well at Cincinnati have given any inkling as to their new choices. Both declare they are looking around with no one in particular in mind.

There may be other changes in managerial ranks before the 1933 season opens but most of the pilots already have signed contracts. Of the three managers who were appointed in the midst of the 1932 season, Bill Terry of the New York Giants and Charley Grimm of the Chicago Cubs already are under contract. Marty McManus, who succeeded John Collins as leader of the Boston Red Sox, has not yet received a contract for next season.

Connie Mack, tall leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, finally has explained his sale of Al Simmons, "Mule" Haas and Jimmy Dykes to the Chicago White Sox, was due, in part at least, to "financial reasons." He adds that no other players will be sold until after the close of next season. "Then," he explained, "if any player is sold or traded it will be to an American league club in the sixth, seventh or eighth place in the standings."

John McGraw explained that his connection with a deal to transfer a National league franchise to Montreal was merely in an advisory capacity to Leo Dandurand and Joseph A. Cattarinich, millionaire Canadian sportsmen. Phil Ball of the St. Louis Browns and Sam Dredson of the St. Louis Cardinals both turned down offers for their franchises. At Montreal, Dandurand said he and his partner were interested in landing a major league franchise anywhere and not necessarily in Montreal although they think the Canadian city could support big league ball.

McGraw himself made it plain he has no idea whatever of returning to an active role in baseball.

Babe Ruth has no intention of retiring as an active player before the end of the 1933 season at the earliest. He probably will take another "cut" in salary but expert observers believe he will be offered something like $55,000 or $70,000 for next year.

Oregon Town Is Razed As Forest Fires Gain

Portland, Ore. — (P) — The town of Cochran in the coast mountain timber country was destroyed by forest fire Tuesday after having been surrounded on all sides by roaring flames. All residents of the town, numbering 200 or more, were rushed through fire lines to safety during the night. Some were able to save household goods.

The small mill town of Enright previously had been reduced to ashes after the residents fled.

Property damage from the fire which started last week had mounted today to more than $1,500,000, officials estimated. One man met death.

Twenty-five fire fighters, who were surrounded by flames last night, escaped today to an old burned spot.

JOB BEFORE MAN
Cleveland — A job is a lot more important than a husband, in the opinion of Mrs. Katarzyna Bijak. Recently her employer told her she would either have to give up her job or her husband. She elected to lose her husband and sued for divorce in Common Pleas Court. It was granted on the grounds of gross neglect of duty. There are three children in the family.

McCarthy's Mom — AND PROUD!

The results of the world series made a proud mother of Mrs. Susan McCarthy, whose son, Joe, manages the New York Yankees. The 73-year-old lady left her home in Germantown, Pa., to see the series in New York. Here she is in her hotel room admiring a photograph of her "little boy."

Bears, Mills Hope For Good Weather

Little Series Teams Idle Second Day Because Of Cold

Minneapolis — (P) — Newark and Minneapolis moved into the fifth game of the little world's series today with both clubs hoping for a revival of powerful hitting which marked their regular campaigns to break their tie of two victories each.

Prospects were for a considerably warmer afternoon than on Tuesday when a sharp drop in temperatures forced the clubs to be idle.

Far below their standard during the summer, Newark's team batting average for the first four games is only .281 while Minneapolis is even lower .236.

Hauser, Ganzel, Rice and Richards, hard hitters during the regular season, for the Millers, who won the American association pennant with a team average of .307, are all listed at .215 or below. Outside of the first game when they obtained 16 hits off four Miller pitchers.

DETROIT — Kid Chocolate, Cuba, outpointed Johnny Farn, Cleveland (10); Beorgan Riley, Detroit, outpointed Wilbur Chevallier, Milwaukee (6).

BERLIN — Vincenz Hower, Germany, stopped Raul Bianchi, Argentina (4).

Ripon College Gets New Grid Assistant
Ripon — (P) — Theodore B. Curtis, coach at Beaver Dam high school the last six years, has been added to the Ripon college coaching staff. He will assist Donald (Red) Martin with freshman football and basketball.

Newark hitting has been the lightest.

Jess Petty, lefthanded veteran, will start for the Millers today with Pete Jablonowski, the probable starter for the International league champions. Manager Al Mameaux of the Bears said the uncertainty of the weather would force him to delay his mound choice until game time.

Bull Dogs, Cards At New London

Ken Laird, Former Lawrence Star, With Wolf River Team
New London—City Athletic Park at New London will be the scene of a mighty gridiron struggle, Sunday, Oct. 9 when Clintonville Cardinals and the New London Bull Dogs meet in their annual football battle.

Both teams have in their lineups several former college and university stars and will give the fans of this section a choice exhibition of professional football.

The Bull Dogs, ranked as one of the leading teams in the state, boast a big and powerful line which averages close to the 200 pound mark. Laird, former Lawrence star, Bannock and Weronke of Stevens Point Teachers college will be in the starting lineup.

Crane, former Marquette luminary, heads a brilliant array of backfield stars.

Last year these two teams battled on even terms for 60 minutes with the Bull Dogs winning 8 to 6.

With the Clintonville-New London rivalry just as intense as ever another great contest is anticipated.

Although the two teams appear to be evenly matched the local team is accorded a slight edge in view of its impressive 28 to 0 victory over the Shawano Indians last Sunday.

Eagles-Blue Streaks Discuss Hockey Plans
The hockey players who in the past two years comprised the Eagles-Blue Streak hockey team met Monday night and discussed plans for the coming season's sport. Another meeting will be held at 7:30 Friday evening at the Eagles club at which time all players who want to try for the squad have been asked to attend. Plans are to have a squad of about 20 players this year.

A six team league with clubs from Fox river valley cities is being contemplated, according to John Roach, who will manage and direct the squad this winter. He will be assisted by Walter Bell.

RACES CRADLE
London—The Sahara Desert, according to Gen. Jans Christian Smuts, was probably the cradle of the human race. He recently told the South African Association for the Advancement of Science that "many considerations point to that part of North Africa now included in the Sahara as the cradle of original home of homo sapiens, modern man, as distinguished from earlier and now extinct species of genus homo."

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

Nothing Venture

By Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: Nan is hurt and angered to find her husband, Jervis doubts that she has told the truth about her family to Rosamund Carew, Jervis's former fiancée, and Rosamund malicious friend Janet Tetterley. Goaded by his attitude, unnerved by fear for his life, Nan flings at Jervis the story of her unhappy childhood as the almost forgotten child of Nigel Forsyth, the famous explorer.

Chapter 23

A CURIOUS SURPRISE

Jervis shrugged his shoulders at Nan's passionate outburst. No, he thought, Nan can't pay for what Rosamund did to me when she threw me over. Neither could he forget it; no longer was it possible to trust Rosamund's sex. To break the tension, Jervis turned abruptly away and, picking up the volume of Who's Who, went over to the shelf and put it back in its place. He stood for a minute or two looking at first one book and then another and whistling softly to himself. The tune bothered Nan because she couldn't put a name to it. She would have given the world twice over to undo what Rosamund had done to her. She wondered whether she would ever be able to undo it. Just now, when his eyes had laughed, she had seen the bitterness and the hardness that were under the laughter. It hurt more than when he frowned. He frowned easily, and it meant very little; but when he laughed, her heart ached for him. "Well, I'd like to know just why you married me, and just what's at the bottom of all this nonsense about Robert Leonard. A deaf and dumb idiot can see that you've got it in for him—and I must say I'd like to know why." Nan tipped her head back, met his eyes, and said seriously. "He's trying to kill you." "Yes, you said that before—he rode down in a taxi, and he arranged for the bridge over the ravine to rot in the spray. Come, you know, it's not good enough! But what I do want to know is why. What has poor old Leonard done to be cast for the part of first murderer? It seems a bit far-fetched, don't you think? And it would interest me quite a lot to know that put it into your head." "It's no use telling you," said Nan. "You wouldn't believe me." "I'm afraid I shouldn't. But you're probably of a very hopeful disposition—you might try." She shook her head. "It wouldn't be any use." "How can you tell if you don't try?" A smile touched her lips and was gone again. "To believe anyone again. It would be waste of time." "You might convert me." "Could I, Jervis?" "I don't think so, Nan. But then that makes it all the more exciting for you. There's always an off chance." She had been standing looking up at him; now she came a step nearer. "He is trying to kill you." "How intriguing! Have you any notion why?" "It's something to do with the money." "I'm afraid that's where you slip up. Poor old Leonard's not in the running—he wouldn't get a penny. It's distinctly his interest to let me linger on and touch me for an occasional $20 bill." "Does he do that?" (That meant that he was hard up—perhaps, desperately hard up.) "He does," said Jervis. "So you see I'm more use to him alive than dead." "If he killed you—" said Nan. She stopped, because it was a dreadful thing to say. "Yes—go on. If he killed me?" "Rosamund would get everything." He gave her a sharp glance. So she was working round to his will. She evidently didn't believe in letting the grass grow under her feet. He nodded. "You seem to know all about it! I typed Mr. Weare's will!" "Well?" She looked at him in silence. "You'd got as far as 'Rosamund would get everything.' Aren't you going on?" "No—it's no use," said Nan. Jervis laughed. "Rosamund gets everything—so in case Robert Leonard should feel an overpowering urge to remove me and marry Rosamund, it might be a good plan if I put temptation out of his way by making a will in your favour, is that it?" Nan felt as if something in her must break. She didn't know whether it was her pride or her love. There was a feeling of anguished strain. She said, "No!" with a little cry. "Unfortunately my hands are tied, so I can't oblige you. I can make a settlement on my wife, but the estate and enough to keep it up on goes to Rosamund under my grandfather's will, failing a direct heir." "I knew that!" "Then I don't quite see what you were driving at!" She came quite close. "He is trying to kill you," she said. "I don't know why—I think it's because of the money. Perhaps he wants to marry Rosamund—I don't know. But I know that he's trying to kill you." He looked down at her with hard amusement. "You're very serious over it." "I am very serious." "And why? Don't you want to be a widow?" "No," said Nan, very pale. Jervis laughed outright. "What an odd taste, my dear!" Before she knew what he was going to do, he took her by the elbows, swung her off her feet, and kissed her on the mouth. He was still laughing when he put her down. She was as white as a sheet and trembling violently. "Why, what's the matter?" he said. She turned and ran out of the room. Jervis stood frowning at the door. What a to-do about a kiss! He threw up his head and laughed. He didn't know why he had kissed her, and he certainly didn't know why she had run away. One could not have expected a shrinking delicacy from the girl who had offered herself to a stranger for ten thousand dollars and a settlement of five thousand a year. No—to do her justice she hadn't asked for five thousand a year; she had only stood for her ten thousand down. He stepped over the low window-sill and walked up and down the terrace smoking, until the sun went down into a rose-coloured haze. Monk found him there watching the sunset. He presented a long envelope and a message. "Mrs. Weare has gone to bed with a headache, sir—and these are the papers you wished to see." Jervis took them to the study. So she had gone to bed with a headache. He wondered if he had made her cry. A faint tinge of triumph just touched his mood. He had lived ten years in the same house as Rosamund, and he had never seen her weep. Nan's lips had trembled when he touched them—the had trembled from head to foot and had run away—she had looked as if she was going to cry. Perhaps she was lying in the big four-post bed crying her heart out. He had a picture of her in his mind, lying there in the shade of the red curtains, with her head on her arm and her face hidden, weeping scalding tears. For some obscure reason the picture gave him a feeling of pleasure. He tore open the long envelope which she had sent him. There were half a dozen letters on thin foreign paper, and a slanting pencil scribble signed Nan. Here are my father's letters—some of them. Please let me have them back. There was a blister on the corner of the paper. It looked as if a drop of water had fallen there. (Copyright, 1932, Lippincott.)

Red Cross Asks For Clothes to Give to Needy

New London Chapter Expects Heavy Demands From Poor This Winter

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—With cold weather just around the corner, pleas are being made for contributions of used clothing to be turned over to needy persons. The call is being made by the local chapter of the American Red Cross, which, because of the increasing need, will function with more than usual activity this winter. Several committees appointed by F. E. Lowell, president of the local chapter already are at work and more will be put to work as soon as the shipments of cotton goods arrive which have been apportioned throughout the country by the national order of the Red Cross.

The cotton, comprising outfitting, gingham and shirting will be shipped here in several different factories, Mr. Lowell states, and is expected within a few days. The cloth will be cut and sewed by women who are volunteering their services and no finished garments will be distributed without the recommendation of the investigating committee.

The work of collecting discarded clothing is one in which every one may participate. That the need of warm clothing is urgent is stressed by William Lipke, head of the poor committee. Lipke states that there is particular need of warm underclothes, shoes, stockings, mittens and overcoats. In fact there is no garment which cannot be used either in its present state or with alterations. Plans are being made to interest women in sewing their own garments, meeting in groups with supervision not only for the work but for the social activity which such gatherings might encourage. Those having clothing to be collected may communicate with Mrs. Milton Ullrich.

Teacher Outlines Agriculture Course

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—E. A. Hutchinson, instructor in the department of vocational agriculture at Clintonville high school, was the guest speaker at the Rotary club luncheon Monday. Hutchinson outlined the practical and popular courses given in the neighboring school, stating that a student may take four years of this course without interfering with the regular academic subjects required for graduation. He also explained that a part time school for boys between the ages of 14 and 20 not otherwise enrolled is maintained and that a farmers' evening school is one of the features of the course. The organization of 4-H clubs was explained and Hutchinson described with what interest these clubs have been received following their organization throughout the county. The school, he pointed out, conducts a detailed study of livestock judging, milk testing, the study of pedigreed corn, the testing of soils and seed grain for the prevention of such. Mr. Hutchinson stated that he would be glad to aid in the organization of 4-H clubs should such assistance be desired locally.

Democratic Rally At Lebanon Hall

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—Approximately 300 persons were present at Fitzgerald's hall in Lebanon Monday night to listen to talks by Democratic speakers. Martin Malloy, chairman, introduced Earl Moldenauer, Clintonville, candidate for the state assembly, who gave figures to show the present high cost of government and suggested steps which might be taken to reduce state taxes. William Carew of Clintonville, active in affairs of the party in Wisconsin, also spoke, as did Frank Flanagan, Bear Creek, candidate for county sheriff. William Butler, city attorney, and candidate for district attorney in the Democratic ticket, was a speaker. The meeting closed with dancing.

Two Football Players Are Nursing Injuries

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The fine of the high school football games resulted in two injuries which are proving handicaps in this week's practice. In the game with Clintonville Bessett and Walmer, full and half-back, who aided brilliantly in the 26-0 victory for the Red and White team, are nursing a broken nose and a broken right thumb, respectively. Bessett's nose was broken during the second half and soon after this Walmer was taped up but continued play. Coaches state that though the injuries are painful both players will probably appear in Saturday's game at Algoma.

Police Chief Leaves For State Convention

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—Chief Harry D. Macklin and Andrew Lueck, former chief of police of this city, left Wednesday to attend the two-day convention of Wisconsin police chiefs at Oshkosh. Mrs. Macklin also is in attendance. The meeting will include various business sessions, a parade, and entertainments.

New Library Shelves

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—New library shelves have been added in the study hall in the new high school during the past week. Other shelves are being constructed in the entrance of the auditorium where band instruments may be stored. Another addition is a series of mail boxes for personal use of teachers.

Hold First Session Of Free Chest Clinic

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Approximately 40 persons visited the free chest clinic which opened for a two-day session Tuesday at the city hall. The clinic is sponsored by the New London Civic Improvement league through the sale of Christmas seals. Two staff physicians, Dr. Florence Mac Inness and Dr. Arthur Playte, with an attendant nurse, are being aided by Mrs. Hazel Barton, Waupaca nurse, Miss Lovetta Rice, city nurse, and members of the improvement league. Those assisting on Tuesday were Mrs. E. C. Jost, Mrs. Oscar Nemschoff, Miss Meinhardt, and Mrs. Rose Deacy. Thorough examinations of the chest are given and a medical history of each patient taken. When chest weaknesses are found the patient is advised to consult the family physician.

Road Jobs Await Poor of County

Construction Work to Start At Once on Highway 54

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Aldermen Tuesday night heard Mayor E. W. Wendlandt announce that the hiring of help on the new Highway 54 project will start today. The mayor was informed by Simon Myer, Iowa member of the Waupaca highway commission, that grading would start immediately. Men hired will work in five-hour shifts, with the lowest labor rate being 40 cents an hour. On Friday or Saturday help will be hired at Northport and the work will start from Northport and New London and continue until the two crews meet. Preference will be given to ex-service men with dependents, the mayor said. The new road will start at the Northport hill and run parallel with the Green Bay and Western tracks and emerge above the Shawano-st bridge.

Councilmen advertised for bids on 60 tons of coal. Each bid must be accompanied by an analysis of the coal. A building permit was granted to W. E. Gehrke and Lyle Hall. A street light will be placed near the O'Connell residence on John's place. This will aid those citizens who reside in the vicinity of the junction. The light was recommended by Alderman Smith and was opposed by two of the aldermen.

New London Society

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Circle No. 3 of the Congregational Ladies Aid society will hold a rummage sale at the garage next to the Gehrke hardware store on N. Water-st. Friday and Saturday. Four new teachers of the public and high schools were entertained at a party given Monday evening by the remaining faculty members at the Red Geranium Tea room. Prizes at five hundred were won by Miss Gertrude Hoffman, A. A. Vorba and Miss Olsen. Honored guests were Miss Lord, Miss Bentz, Miss Olsen and Mr. Calef. A lunch was served following cards.

Parent-Teacher Group Holds Monthly Meeting

Special to Post-Crescent
Medina—Mrs. Edward Peters entertained the Ladies Aid society of the Winchester Lutheran church at her home here this afternoon. The Cedar Grove Parent Teachers association held its monthly meeting at the schoolhouse Thursday evening. A business meeting was held. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Merle Culbertson; vice president, Miss Margaret Miller; secretary and treasurer, Ralph Haas. The committees for the October meeting are entertainment, Mrs. Erwin Tellock and Miss Margaret Sweet; refreshments, Mrs. Frank Lauth and Mrs. Elmer Goss. Mrs. F. E. Routh and daughter of Clintonville and Mrs. Bernice Stein of California called at the John Ruppel home Wednesday.

Seven Initiated by Foreign Wars Vets

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Veterans of Foreign Wars initiated seven men into the organization Monday evening at the city hall. This group now comprises 15 members, but it is aiming for a membership of 60. Arthur Lasch, Martin Kubisaki, Frances Weinhardt, Charles Irvin, Edwin Jeske, Albert Heimbruch and Frank Fogaralski were the new members. Initiated Veterans from the Bear Creek organization were present. Officers will be elected and a charter formed at a special meeting on Oct. 11. This new organization also is planning to sponsor a dance Oct. 16 at the Maple Grove pavilion.

Prepare Gymnasium For Winter Sports

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—In preparation for the approaching winter athletic season, the new high school gymnasium is being lined. Two practice courts for basketball have been marked so that two practice games may be in progress at the same time. Lines for the regulation line for this game have also been painted. In addition an indoor baseball court has been laid out.

Dr. Borchardt Ill At Memorial Hospital

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Dr. A. C. Borchardt is seriously ill at Memorial hospital. He was taken ill last week. His daughter, Mrs. Curtis Coe, is expected to arrive from Pennsylvania, as is his son, Reuben, of Milwaukee, a student at Marquette university.

Perfect Records Held By 22 Oakland Pupils

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER

(Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York.—(P)—Successful flurries of active selling knocked the props from under the stock market today, after selling sessions of quiet wobbling. Liquidation abated for a time in the afternoon but quickened again in the late dealings, and many leading issues lost 2 to more than 7 points. The turnover approximated 3,000,000 shares.

While the mid-week business statistics were moderately favorable, market opinion in Wall-st was decidedly mixed. Further gains in steel production and electrical output were indicated as encouraging, although steel business, particularly, has not come up to the more rosy expectations of some weeks ago.

A slump in wheat adversely influenced such stocks as the farm implements and the mail order issue. Oils held up relatively well, despite some uneasiness over crude prices in the mid-continent. The weekly statistics of the American Petroleum Institute were regarded as moderately encouraging.

Many traders who had been awaiting a resumption of the advance apparently let their holdings go in discouragement. A 2-cent break in wheat was particularly depressing to shares, since some speculative quarters had been looking to that market for bullish indications.

Farm implements dropped sharply, with Case off more than 7, and International Harvester more than 5. Rails were also sharply depressed, with Union Pacific losing about 7 points, and Santa Fe nearly as much, while New York Central and Southern Pacific reacted 4 or 5 points.

Other shares down about 4 points included U. S. Steel, American Can, Dupont, Westinghouse, North American, American Tobacco "B", Corn Products and others, while losses of 2 or more were numerous. Oils were fairly neglected, but Standard of N. J., lost a point. General Motors lost 2, and General Electric as much.

Grain Notes

Chicago.—(P)—Discussion of President Hoover's twelve-point plan for rehabilitation of agriculture overshadowed all other influences in the LaSalle-st. grain market today. The trade for several days had been at a standstill awaiting the president's pronouncements.

Most of the grain dealers on the board of trade were of the opinion that modification of governmental marketing restrictions would have a beneficial effect on grain and would lead to considerable buying and consequent price increases. Efforts to open an export market for grain have been favored by grain men who have contended that prices cannot be increased permanently until export demand picks up.

On the other hand Thomson-McKinnon said: "Nothing the president has said can say or do can have any permanent effect on grain prices, which will eventually reflect economic and not statutory laws."

Wheat rallied sharply in the closing hours yesterday, with shorts frightened because of the lack of selling and strength in corn. Many LaSalle-st. operators said that wheat was at least temporarily oversold and predicted a substantial price increase. Eastern commission houses are said by observers to have placed orders to support the market on all soft spots.

Outcome of Argentine crops, which probably will be uncertain for two more months, is expected to be one of the dominant market influences for some time.

Corn rallied sharply late yesterday on buying credited to eastern houses. Rye displayed an undertone of firmness in sympathy with corn and wheat and some buying.

Wall Street Briefs

New York.—(P)—Governors of the New York Curb exchange have adopted a regulation forbidding specialists or their partners to participate in a securities pool in which a member of the exchange is a specialist. A similar rule was made by the New York Stock exchange last week.

General Electric Co., announces that it has increased production of oil furnaces at its Pittsfield, Mass., plant by 50 per cent. The higher rate of operation will continue until the first of 1933.

The "Iron Age" composite price of finished steel has risen 25 cents a ton to 1.977 cents a pound, the high for the year. The pig iron price is unchanged at $13.64 a gross ton, but the heavy melting scrap composite has dropped to $7.767 from $7.75.

MILWAUKEE GRAINS

Milwaukee.—(P)—Wheat No. 2, hard 55¢; corn No. 2, yellow 27¢; corn No. 2, white 27¢; corn No. 3, mixed 26¢; rye No. 2, white 16¢; rye No. 2, 36¢; barley malling 30¢; feed 23¢; hay, unchanged.

Sagging Prices Ease Hog Trade

Wholesale Pork Down Despite Decline in Live Hog Receipts

Chicago.—(P)—Sagging wholesale pork prices in the face of dwindling hog receipts at a season of the year when expansion in the normal condition, checked any enthusiasm which might have developed in the early swine market.

Demanding 10c higher prices for the better grade of lights and butchers, which have been compressed within a narrow range of 10c, sellers contracted with a group of indifferent buyers who offered no better than steady prices.

Packers checked in 4,000 hogs on direct consignment to their local plants, and 4,000 stale hogs were on hand in addition to the 16,000 fresh arrivals. Packing was scarce and held firm while 180-220 lb. hogs of the new crop were plentiful and were quoted at $4.75 to $5.00. Butcher hogs were not under-taken freely in the opening market, as supplies again were large enough to assure ample killing materials for all local interests, and eastern buyers were not attracted into competitive buying on the rank and file of steers. Only 100 head were forwarded direct to packers and no range offerings were included in the run. Initial bids were weaker, but sellers refused to yield and a discount within the first rounds.

Holding down live mutton receipts was the only alternative offered the trade in view of the continued narrow outlet for mutton. Packers received 1,600 lambs from outside points most of the open market receipts consisted of good western lambs and early trading was slow.

Grains in Sharp Downward Moves

On Chicago Market

Wheat Prices Lowest Since Aug. 3, Corn and Oats At Low Records

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN

(Associated Press Market Editor)

Chicago.—(P)—Flurried selling that accompanied New York stock market breaks carried wheat prices down today to the lowest point since Aug. 3, with corn and oats smashing low records.

Grain traders for the most part regarded President Hoover's speech last night as likely to have no immediate stimulating market effect.

Another unsettling influence was an all-time new bottom price for wheat at Winnipeg, October contracts there dropping below 49 cents a bushel.

Wheat closed unsteady, 2-2 1/2 cents lower than yesterday's finish Dec. 51 1/2; May 57 1/2; corn 1 1/2 down; Dec. 20 1/2; May 31 1/2; oats 2 1/2 off, and provisions showing losses of 5 to 27 cents.

An outstanding feature of today's grain market was the fact that all deliveries of corn out of the season's bottom price record, with December contracts falling to under 27 cents a bushel, the lowest since 1896. Oats prices, too, reached a complete new low level for the season and for many years back. Much of the selling of corn was of a stop loss character.

Some of the largest houses in the grain trade here issued statements that President Hoover's address was of no particular benefit to the grain market at present. Other grain authorities expressed opposite views, and asserted that the address amounted to an export bounty plan of the boldest nature. About 2 cents a bushel setback in wheat took place nevertheless before downturns were at least temporarily checked.

Big receipts of corn here, 519 cars today, more than double the total either a week or a year ago, did much to weigh down corn and oats prices.

City May Have To Borrow to Wind Up Year

Enough Money Apparently Left in Treasury for Only Two Months

Kaukauna—The possibility of the city finishing the year without borrowing money became more uncertain with the receipt of the September report from the city treasurer at a meeting of the common council last night. With the budget being over drawn by a small margin, the city decreased its surplus to $69,465.07, it was revealed by Alderman Eathan Brewster in a discussion of the report.

Alderman Brewster discussed the receipts for the next three months and said it would be possible for the city to finish the month of the next quarter without borrowing, but that it may be necessary to borrow for current expenses for 30 days. The treasurer's report showed a cash balance of $68,058.89 on Sept. 1, receipts of $37,891.40, disbursements of $56,282.22, and a cash balance of $69,465.07 on Oct. 1. About $30,000 would have to remain in the fund during December to pay current expenses of the water and electrical departments, it was pointed out. This amount left approximately $39,000 to pay expenses of the water and electrical departments, it was pointed out. This amount left approximately $39,000 to pay expenses for the next three months.

The aldermen discussed a radio interference ordinance drawn up by the utility commission. This ordinance prohibited the operation of any apparatus causing interference with radio reception. Failure to abide by the provisions of the ordinance would be punished by fine or imprisonment.

Ordinance Set Aside
The utility commission formulated the ordinance from three similar ordinances in force elsewhere. The penalty for failure to obey the ordinance was a fine from $1 to $25 or from five to 30 days imprisonment. Reports of the various causes of interference were given by the superintendent of the electrical department. The two principal reasons were two high voltage lines passing through the city. One of the lines is owned by the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. and the other by the Wisconsin Public Service Co. The ordinance was set aside for further study.

M. H. Niesen was appointed to fill a vacancy on the fire and police commission by Mayor B. W. Fargo and the appointment was approved by the council. Alderman William Carnot asked if Mr. Niesen was a member of any other municipal commission at the present time, and Mayor Fargo stated that he was president of the Vocational school board.

Application for a street light at the intersection of Amanda-st and Canal-st was submitted to the council and referred to the utility commission. If the commission finds the light necessary it will be installed.

Several unsigned bills covering purchases of the park board were not allowed by the public grounds and buildings committee. Alderman Walter Cooper, chairman of the committee, said that the park board had been warned that no unsigned bills would be allowed. The clerk was instructed to notify the chairman of the board that future bills to the council must be signed by some authority of the park board before they would be recognized.

Favor Lighting Limit
Limiting people on the poor list to $1.50 a month for lighting in their homes was advocated by Alderman Walter Cooper and a motion to this effect was passed by the council after considerable discussion. Several of the aldermen were in favor of the $1.50 limit, while others said it was all right during the summer months, but that in winter more light was used.

A special investigator to check the resources of persons on the poor list and their need for aid was asked by Alderman William Gillen after Alderman Cooper had requested a better method of checking on men who receive aid. It was pointed out that some of the men had been working for short periods but had received the same amount of aid during the period in which they had worked. Mayor B. W. Fargo questioned the feasibility of such an appointment, because it might cost the city more to maintain an investigator than the amount lost in unnecessary aid.

Alderman Eathan Brewster reported that the interest on guaranteed bank deposits had been raised by an act of the last state legislature from one and one-half percent to two per cent. Mayor Fargo asked for an investigation to see if some substitute plan would be cheaper. The finance committee will investigate several plans.

Providing work for taxpayers who will be unable to pay their taxes next year was sought by Alderman William Gillen. Several plans of providing work were discussed but none were found suitable.

Tax delinquencies also entered the discussion that followed Alderman Gillen's suggestion. Various instances where homes could be saved for some of the delinquent taxpayers were cited.

The council adjourned to Oct. 18 at the suggestion of Alderman Eathan Brewster. At the Oct. 18 meeting the aldermen will check the delinquent tax list.

Police Chief Goes To State Gathering

Kaukauna—R. H. McCarty, chief of police, left Tuesday for Oshkosh where he will participate in the state convention of the Wisconsin State Police Chiefs' association today and Thursday. Chief McCarty is secretary of the group and assisted Police Chief Arthur Gabbert of Oshkosh in arranging the convention.

1,000 Yards Cotton For Red Cross Group

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna Chapter of the American Red Cross will receive 1,000 yards of cotton material as its share of the material being distributed by the central cotton distribution office in Washington, D. C., according to information received by the Kaukauna Chapter of Red Cross. This allotment is part of the 500,000 bales of cotton which have been placed in the hands of the Red Cross by the farm board to be distributed in garments to the needy.

Formation of a committee to handle the distribution of the cotton to be made into garments will be completed this week. Last winter a similar committee did much toward relieving the poor fund by furnishing clothing to many of the city poor. The distribution of the cotton garments is expected to relieve the poor fund again this year.

Miss Berg Winner Of Tennis Tourney

Kaukauna—Miss Leone Berg won the tennis tournament staged by St. Therese Sodality of St. Mary's Catholic church when she defeated Miss Dolores Nyles in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1, this week. Miss Berg also defeated Helen Nyles and Irene Berg to enter the finals.

Woman's Club in Opening Meeting

Mrs. William F. Ashe, President, Presides At Session

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna Woman's club held its opening meeting here Tuesday afternoon in Hotel Kaukauna, with a 1 o'clock luncheon preceding a business session and program. Mrs. William F. Ashe, president of the club, presided at the business session and 40 members responded to roll call.

The call to the biennial meeting of the State Federation of Women's clubs was read. The convention will be held in Oshkosh Oct. 11 to 13 inclusive. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Raulff and the public programs will take place in the Strand theatre. Delegates elected to the convention were Mesdames Ashe and J. Cleland, with Mrs. H. E. Thompson as alternate.

Miss Bernice Harper, city librarian, was the speaker on the afternoon. Miss Harper reviewed the first chapter of the book to be studied by the club this year. She also gave a short sketch of the author, James Adams. Included in the program was the president's greeting by Mrs. Ashe and community singing. Other entertaining features were music by Mrs. John Farwell and readings by Mrs. James Mackesy of Appleton. Hostesses were Mesdames H. T.

High Schools Cling To Thrift Record

Kaukauna—Both senior and junior high schools maintained their perfect thrift records Tuesday. Students of the high school banked as follows: 79 seniors, $11.60, averaging 14.6 cents per student; 93 juniors, $23.39, averaging 25.1 cents; 108 sophomores, $12.78, averaging 11.8 cents; 139 freshmen, $24.83, averaging 17.8 cents. The junior was the honor class and the commercial room, with Miss Edith Porterfield in charge, led the assembly banking. At the junior high school students of the seventh grade banked $2.85 and pupils of the eighth grade $14.54. J. J. Haass is in charge of the seventh grade and Miss Loma Eiting is in charge of the eighth grade.

Supply of Water Ample for City

Report Submitted to City Council by Engineering Firm

Kaukauna—That the city has an ample supply of drinking water was revealed in a report of the Jerry Donahue Engineering Co. submitted to the common council Tuesday evening. The Donahue Engineering Co. has been engaged in a survey of the city water system for the past few weeks, to determine the necessity of drilling a new well.

It was found by the engineers that the pumpage must be increased and that the city reservoir on Taylor-st must be replaced in the near future. The council took no action on the report, which was approved by the utility commission at a meeting Monday. Aldermen will review the report before taking any action.

Rah Rah Club Will Attend Grid Game

Kaukauna—The Rah Rah club of the high school has chartered a special bus to take members to Oconto Saturday to attend the Kaukauna-Oconto football game. A number of other girl students of the high school also are planning to attend the game. Miss Vida Shepard, history instructor, is in charge of the Rah Rah group.

Miss Thelma Derus entertained at her home on Sarah-st Tuesday evening. Cards were played and lunch was served.

Dance at Darby Thurs.

Board Delays Vote On Evening Classes

Kaukauna—Absence of two members of the vocational school board at a meeting Tuesday evening in the office of the Vocational school in the municipal building, caused the school commissioners to delay action on evening classes at the school. Whether the classes will be held will be decided at the November meeting. Gordon Mulholland was appointed to the board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of I. C. Spurr. Commissioners are appointed by board of education.

KAUKAUNA PERSONALS

Kaukauna—William Van Lieshout, daughter, Mrs. R. J. Van Ellis, and Mrs. Harold Frank motored to Milwaukee Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Aesmann and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Aesmann of Seymour visited Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoffman Tuesday.

High School Eleven Prepares for Oconto

Kaukauna—The high school football team is being drilled for its clash with the Oconto high school gridders at Oconto Saturday afternoon. It will be the third game for the Kaws in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference. The Kaws have gone through two conference battles unscathed and are confident of annexing another victory Saturday at the expense of the Oconto gridders. The Littlemen also will be seeking revenge for a 45 to 6 trimming handed to the Kaukauna team of 1929.

These tiny tender leaves of "spicy" Turkish tobaccos

NOT TOO MUCH

Turkish tobacco sometimes runs hundreds of little leaves to the pound. In cigarettes it is used much as seasoning is in food, for flavor and better taste.

You know that seasoning has to be used right ... just enough of it, not too much.

Chesterfield puts in just the right amount of Turkish tobacco — the best kinds — Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun. These are not merely blended, but cross-blended with ripe, mellow Domestic tobaccos.

Enough Turkish, not too much — that's one reason why Chesterfields taste better — why they have a delicacy of aroma you do not find in other cigarettes.
